"Important Message" From Wilson to Democrats

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 5.—President Wilson will send an important message to the Democratic dinner on Jackson Day, January 8," it was officially announced at the White House today. No further information was forthcoming concerning the message, but immediately rumors arose that the President was to set forth his position as to a third term.

It is understood that the President has taken up the question of the peace treaty in his message [illegible] has urged his party to use all efforts to speed its ratification.

TELLS OF 'BRIBE' TO ENVOY

Woman, Before Senate Committee, Repeats Zapista Rumor of Million to Fletcher

Washington, Jan. 5.—Mrs. Cora Sturgis of Washington, testifying this afternoon before the Senate Sub-Committee investigating relations with Mexico, declared that Zapatistas in Mexico had charged that United States Ambassador Fletcher received $1,000,000 from the Carranza government for a "clean bill of health" for Mexico in the United States.

Mrs. Sturgis told of being taken prisoner by the Zapatista forces "who worked with the Carranza forces against Americans," and being held by them for eight months. During this time she was sent to the Zapatista headquarters at Mexico City with a message. The Zapatista commander threatened the life of her mother and husband if she did not return in two months.

By arrangement with the American Embassy a Zapatista delegate was sent to the camp with Mrs. Sturgis to endeavor to obtain the release of the family. It was this Zapatista envoy who told the Zapatista leader at the prison camp, Caly Mayor, that Carranza had paid Fletcher the money, she testified.

HELD THREE MORE MONTHS.

This was given as an excuse by Mayor for holding the prisoners three more months.

"I did not believe that any Representative of the United States government would do such a thing, and I do not believe such a thing," Mrs. Sturgis said. "I told them so and was punished."

"Do you not know that Ambassador

Heavy Loss of Life Feared in Mexico Quake

Mexico City, Jan. 5.—Definite reports of the complete damage and loss of life caused by the earthquake in Eastern and Southern Mexico were lacking today as a result of the severance of wire communications. It is known that several small towns were destroyed and that others were damaged. It is feared that the loss of life was [illegible] continued at intervals for hours.

Teocelo and Coatpia, in the State of Vera Cruz, were destroyed. Towns and villages in Oaxaca, Tamaulipas and Guerrero were damaged. It is reported that Port Lobos, north of Tampico, where several American corporations have big terminals, were damaged.

POND OUT FOR CONVENTION DELEGATE

Friend of Baxter and McCall Will Run on Coolidge Platform

J. Waldo Pond of the Boston Finance Commission, friend of Charles S. Baxter, and who, in 1916, went to the Chicago convention as a McCall-for-President delegate, today announced his candidacy for delegate to the Republican National Convention from the Twelfth Congressional District on a "Coolidge for President" platform.

Pond was appointed to the Finance Commission by Governor McCall through the influence of Baxter.

Frederic A. Juniksy of Dorchester, friend of Baxter and of Pond, who said he was authorized by Pond to make announcement of his candidacy, was asked whether it would not be construed as a repudiation of Baxter's sensational attacks upon Governor Coolidge.

"We're still friends with Baxter," said Juniksy, "but you can only go so far with a man. No need for us to cut our heads off."

Mr. Juniksy later announced that Walter C. Grant, who was also a McCall-for-President delegate from the same district in 1916, will undoubtedly team up with Pond on a Coolidge-for-President ticket in the coming race.

"There is some indication of love lost between the Pond-Juniksy and the Baxter forces," Baxley, it is said, agreed to "go through" with James M. Curley in the last mayoralty campaign. He selected Pond and Juniksy to organize a Republican movement for Curley. That is said to have been the extent of his "going through." Pond and Juniksy have always felt, it is said, that Baxter left them in the lurch.

"I do not feel that any man could regard himself as qualified to fill the great office of President. If it comes to any man it should come not of his own seeking but as a great duty to be met with a knowledge and faith that when duties are sent powers are sent to enable their discharge."

With these words Governor Coolidge today definitely dismissed inquiries as to whether the action of James B. Reynolds, in starting a campaign for the nomination of Coolidge for President, may be taken as an announcement of his candidacy.

$6,000 JOB FOR U. S. MARSHAL

Friends Expect No Opposition When Senate Is Asked to Confirm Mitchell

John J. Mitchell, United States marshal at Boston since the closing days of 1914, was today nominated as internal revenue collector for this district, in succession to John F. Malley, who resigned a few months ago.

Andrew J. Casey of Newburyport has been acting as collector since the resignation of Mr. Malley.

The nomination must be confirmed by the Senate before the new collector can take office. While the appointment is universally popular in Federal circles it is also a source of regret to members of the marshal's staff at headquarters.

As marshal Mr. Mitchell receives a yearly salary of $5,000 and as collector of internal revenue he will receive $6,000.

EXPECTS NO OPPOSITION.

Marshal Mitchell was reappointed to his present post by President Wilson on February 27, 1919. He was confirmed without opposition and it is felt that there will be no opposition to the new appointment.

Prior to being named United States marshal Mitchell had been a Congressman from the Thirteenth District. He was a candidate for reelection, but with the coalition of the Republican and Progressive forces then Democratic candidates had no chance of being elected.

During this time as marshal he was called on to take numerous important steps, such for example as the seizure of the German liners that were interned at this port.

He carried this work out in a manner that won him applause from all who had occasion to know about the task. Further than that, he was called on to enforce the laws having to do with enemy aliens.

ARRESTED DR. MUCK.

Dr. Karl Muck, Karl Bertling and hundreds of other noted prisoners passed through his office. There was a complaint forthcoming from no prisoner he handled. His office was particularly active during the slacker raids of 1918, and only this past week were his men extremely busy with the task of bringing in Communists and other radicals who were apprehended.

As yet there is no intimation as to who might be named to succeed Mitchell in the event of his nomination being confirmed. There are said to be numerous candidates for the post, and it would not be surprising if the appointment were considerably delayed.

In the meantime Chief Deputy Marshal P. J. Duane, one time Mayor of Waltham, will be in charge.

Marshal Mitchell is a bachelor and lives in Marlboro.

AUTOIST GIVEN 4 TO 5 YEARS IN PRISON

Troy, N. Y., Driver Charged With Causing Death of Vermont Girl

Burlington, Vt., Jan. 5.—From four to five years in the State Prison, the most drastic sentence ever inflicted in Vermont on an autoist responsible for a death, was imposed on Edward T. Daley of Troy, N. Y., here today.

Daley, a former Troy saloon keeper, was convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Hasel Rugg on September 19.

The girl was instantly killed. The autoist did not stop, according to the testimony, but was later identified by means of a bit of broken mudguard which fitted his machine.

The severe sentence is generally taken as a reflection of the popular indignation over the number of such accidents recently. Three Burlington people have been killed by autoists in the last few weeks and in each instance those guilty have taken refuge in flight.

DENIKIN PLEADS FOR SURRENDERED MUNITIONS

Paris, Jan. 5.—The Supreme Council today received a dispatch from the French mission attached to General Denikin's staff in Southern Russia urgently requesting that all of the surrendered war materials in Bulgaria be sent to Denikin's headquarters at once.

General Denikin is commander of the anti-Bolshevik armies in Southern Russia. A London cablegram to the International News Service on Saturday quoted a Moscow wireless to the effect that the Denikin regime had been overthrown. This has not been confirmed.

'FIGHTING EDITOR' AT ELLIS ISLAND

New York, Jan. 5.—Gregory Weinstein, a Russian, who is said by the Department of Justice to be the directing genius of Bolshevism on the Western continent, was arrested on a deportation warrant today as he was about to enter the so-called "Soviet embassy," the headquarters of Ludwig Maartens.

The arrest was made by Mortimer J. Davis, an agent of the Department of Justice, acting under orders from Chief William Flynn.

Weinstein is alleged to be the closest friend in America of Leon Trotzky and succeeded Trotzky as editor of a local Russian paper, when the latter went to Russia.

The prisoner is also said to have held the office of "Chancellor of the Soviet embassy."

It is reported that another official of the "Soviet embassy," who is now out of town, would be arrested upon his return.

"RED" PAPER SUPPRESSED.

The publication of the Novy Mir, a "Red" newspaper on which Leon Trotzky was employed while in this country, ceased today when its offices here were raided by agents of the Department of Justice, it is [illegible] in Gregory Weinstein, who was sent to Ellis Island. The newspaper was permanently closed by the Department of Justice, it was announced.

Weinstein, a Russian Jew, has been known in "Red" circles as the "fighting editor." It was stated at the Department of Justice in Washington today that he was a fellow

PETERS SEEKS FUNDS TO WAR ON REDS

Mayor Peters today sent to the City Council an order calling for an appropriation of $15,000 to be used by his special committee in combatting Bolshevism.

In transmitting the order the Mayor asked that the appropriation be completed at the earliest possible moment, so that the committee may lose no time in beginning its activities.

This committee, which is headed by former Corporation Counsel Alexander Whiteside, will have its headquarters in City Hall Annex.

According to Mayor Peters, the chief activities of the committee will be to overcome propaganda disseminated by men of revolutionary tendencies.

HARRY MANSFIELD DIES IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, Jan. 5.—Harry K. Mansfield, former owner of the Ferncroft Inn at Middleton, Mass., and defendant in the famous "Toodles" breach of promise case, was found dead in his bed at the Crown Hotel here today. Death is believed to have been due to heart diseases. He had complained of ill health since Saturday.

Radicals Arrested in New York Will Be Sent to Deer Island, Boston

Statements that the total number of alleged Communists arrested had reached 2,100 throughout the nation, and that some of those held in New York would be shipped to Deer Island, featured the government's drive against revolutionists today.

In Lawrence a walkout of Amalgamated Textile Workers, called to protest against the arrest of their leaders, proved to be a failure, as only twelve men responded.

As a result of the large number to be confined here, it was stated that there was a strong probability that a "Soviet Ark" would sail from Boston Harbor shortly.

The 3,100 persons arrested are those against whom the government has perfect cases, according to Frank Burke, assistant chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice. Mr. Burke, at Washington, declared that the raids still were going on.

Penal Institutions Commissioner Thomas C. O'Brien stated today that several hundred Reds now being held in New York would be sent to Deer Island because of congestion at Ellis Island.

The comissioner stated that he was planning to care for at least 1,000 alleged Communists at the harbor institution, forty more being taken there by the steamship Monitor today. These forty had been held at the city prison since their arrests in the Boston raids.

Federal agents, in announcing that New York prisoners were to be sent here, stated that those arrested in New England had been handled far better than had been expected.

More Reds to Be Trapped in New York, Declares Chief Flynn

New York, Jan. 5.—More arrests in the government round-up of alleged members of the Communist and Communist Labor parties were promised here today by Chief William J. Flynn of the Department of Justice agents.

"We are not yet through with our work," Chief Flynn declared. There are between 650 and 700 prisoners detained at the immigration station at Ellis Island, and the congestion is so great that one of the Eastern army camps probably will be utilized as a detention place. It was reported that the War Department would be asked to allow the use of Camp Merritt, N. J., or Camp Upton, L. I., for this purpose.

Examination in deportation proceedings were begun today by a special board of inquiry at Ellis Island. The findings will be sent to the Department of Labor at Washington. This department will make final decision on the question of deportation. There were upwards of thirty women prisoners among the alleged communists.

Great numbers of prisoners from other parts of the country were scheduled to arrive here during the day for deportation proceedings at Ellis Island. These included 500 prisoners from Detroit, 250 from Chicago, 200 from Philadelphia and about 150 each from Buffalo and New England States.

Some of the prisoners already detained on Ellis Island were said to be planning habeas corpus proceedings in the courts to gain their freedom. But according to Charles Reich, an attorney who was retained by some of the captives, many of the Russians now under arrest will make no effort to combat deportation to Soviet Russia.

Following the announcement by Department of Justice agents that they had found evidence of a plot to flood the United States and other non-Bolshevik countries with counterfeit money and government bonds in an effort to create financial chaos, the government was said to be rushing secret service agents to the Canadian and Mexican borders to watch for suspicious foreigners.

According to Federal agents who examined literature found in Saturday morning's raids, evidence was unearthed to indicate that the Communists were preparing to put $200,000,000 in counterfeit currency, Liberty bonds and war savings stamps in circulation in this country.

It was declared, however, that the public need not be afraid of buying counterfeit bonds, as none had yet been circulated. Some counterfeit bills of large denominations are said to have recently been found in banks, but their origin is unknown. The engraving is said to be a marvellous imitation of the real thing, but the paper is heavier than that used by the United States treasury.

Pays Tribute to Hearst Papers as Power in Treaty Fight

Paris, Jan. 5.—Tribute to the power of the Hearst newspapers is contained in a cablegram from George Lechartier, American correspondent of the Petit Parisien, which has the largest circulation in the world.

Cabling from New York, M. Lechartier warns against optimism as a result of the efforts on behalf of a compromise treaty. He declared that the campaign which has been waged by the Hearst press for the past fortnight certainly has not been without influence upon public opinion.

"In summing up, the perspective certainly appears less brilliant today than a fortnight ago," said M. Lechartier in conclusion.

Proceedings Begun for Deportation of Alien "Reds" in Toils

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Deportation proceedings were started today in a large number of cases against the alien members of the Communist and Communist Labor parties who were rounded up in the raids which began Friday night.

Meanwhile the arrests were still going on, according to reports to the Department of Justice. Assistant Attorney-General Garvan said there had been a number of arrests of "perfect cases" made since the last official figure of 2,635 was announced, but that no official summary had been made.

The Department of Justice does not purpose to discontinue the raids until all of the leaders and members of the two "Red" organizations have been brought to book, it was stated today.

Applications for bail from those taken in the raids were being considered by the Department of Labor today. Officials of the Department of Justice were urging that no bail be permitted, but the Department of Labor has ruled that bail may be given. The closest scrutiny was ordered, however, in permitting bail.

Congress was aroused to action today by the appeal of the attorney-general for power to prosecute those Americans who were taken in the raids. Under the present laws the Federal government has no means of getting at the Americans who act as "parlor Reds," and many who were taken in the roundup had to be turned over to State authorities where there are State laws under which they may be punished. Leaders in Congress were prepared to start action which would remedy this situation.

Classify Suspects at Deer Island, Preparatory to Examining Them

An immigration inspector and two agents of the Department of Justice went to Deer Island today to classify the alleged Reds taken in raids Friday night and Saturday, preparatory to examining them. The examinations will be made as soon as certain important documents arrive from Washington, Commissioner Skeffington said today. There are several well-known radicals for whom warrants have been issued, but who escaped the dragnet, and it may be a month before the last o them have been caught.

The hearings will be held by immigrant inspectors under the Immigration Act of 1918. Aliens who have advocated the destruction of the government of the United States will be deported and natural born citizens of that type will be turned over to the Department of Justice for criminal prosecution.

Commissioner Skeffington said today that he had been informed by George Roewer, Socialist attorney, that at least two Socialists confined on Deer Island were "Right Wing" Socialists and were utterly opposed to the Soviet program of the extreme radicals. Commissioner Skeffington thought that it was possible that others had been taken in the raids who would be found not guilty of treasonable practices and utterances. All would be given a chance to prove their innocence and could be represented by counsel, he said, at the hearings.

A. Musky, said to be secretary of the Worcester Communist party, has been brought to Boston for confinement on Deer Island. Musky was found in his boarding house, in bed and with his head and face so bandaged that he could not be recognized. He denied that he was Musky and groaned that he was very sick. One of the raiding officers pulled down the bed clothes and found the man fully dressed. A physician removed the bandages, examined the man and pronounced him well. Musky then admitted his identity. He is said to have been active in Detroit before going to Worcester.

Red Literature Is Found in Doorway on Pearl Street

Department of Justice agents are investigating the source of a large quantity of Red literature found early today in a doorway on Pearl street by the police of Station 2.

The literature consisted of revolutionary pamphlets in Russian and English entitled "The Young Russia." It was neatly bound together.

The authorities believe that the pamphlets were dropped by some frightened Communist on the approach of the police. It is learned that tons of radical literature have been moved in the last few days from halls known to be under suspicion to the comparative safety of private homes.

SUPREME COURT DECLARES 2.75 BEER ILLEGAL

Justice Brandeis Reads Decision, Killing Last Hope of Wets

Supreme Court, read a decision of the court, refusing to lift the prohibition ban on 2.75 per cent. beer.

The decision was rendered by a five to four vote of the court. The justices dissenting from the majority opinion were McReynolds, Day, Vandevanter and Clarke.

The decision was handed down in the case of the Jacob Ruppert Corporation of New York versus Francis G. Caffey, U. S. Attorney, Southern District, New York, and Richard J. McElligott, deputy collector of Third District of New York.

The case was appealed from the district court for the Southern District of New York. The lower court is sustained.

VOLSTEAD ACT UPHELD.

A preliminary injunction was denied by the District Court restraining Federal officers from enforcing the terms and provisions of the war prohibition act and the Volstead enforcement act, which fixes the percentage of alcohol in beverages at one-half of 1 per cent.

The corporation is a large brewing company, said to be engaged in the manufacture of non-intoxicating beer containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. by volume, but less than 2.75 per cent. alcohol by weight, the standard that was fixed by President Wilson in his proclamation of December 8, 1917.

Counsel for the brewing company, Elihu Root and William D. Guthrie, declared in presenting the arguments to the Supreme Court of the United States that the acts upon which the suit was predicated were not valid exercises of the war powers of Congress and were unconstitutional.

The Ruppert case was a test case in behalf of all brewers making "non-intoxicating beer." It was alleged that over a billion dollars' worth of property interests were involved in the controversy.

IMMATERIAL, SAYS BRANDEIS.

"May the plaintiff show as a basis for relief that the beer manufactured by it with alcoholic content not greater than 2.75 per centum in weight and 3.4 per centum in volume is not in fact intoxicating?" inquired Justice Brandeis in his opinion. "The government insists that the fact alleged is immaterial since the passage of the Volstead act by which the prohibition of the manufacture and sale is extended to all beer and other malt liquors containing as much as one-half of one per centum of alcohol by volume.

"If the war power of Congress to effectively prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in order to promote the nation's efficiency in men, munitions and supplies is as full and complete as the police power of the States to effectively enforce such prohibition in order to promote the health, safety and morals of the community, it is clear that this provision of the Volstead act is valid and has rendered immaterial the question, whether plaintiffs' beer is intoxicating.

MUST APPLY TO ALL.

"The legislation and decisions of the highest courts of nearly all of the States establish that it is deemed impossible to effectively enforce either prohibitory laws or other laws merely regulating the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, if liability or inclusion within the law is made to depend upon the insuable fact whether or not a particular liquor made or sold as a beverage is intoxicating.

"In other words, it clearly appears that a liquor law to be capable of effective enforcement must, in the opinion of the Legislatures and courts of the several States, be made to apply to all liquors of the species enumerated.

"In forty-two of the forty-eight States a malt liquor containing over 2 per cent. alcohol by weight or volume is deemed for the purpose of regulation or prohibition, intoxicating as a matter of law. Only one State has adopted a test as high as 2.75 per cent. by weight or 3.4 per cent. by volume.

"The decisions of the courts as well as the action of the Legislatures make it clear—or, at least, furnish ground upon which Congress reasonably might conclude—that a rigid classification of beverages is an essential of either effective regulation or effective prohibition of intoxicating liquors."

Attorney-General McCrann of New Jersey today filed a brief in the Supreme Court refusing to join with the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' Association in original proceedings to test the constitutionality of the eighteenth amendment providing for prohibition. He claimed that the assent of New Jersey was necessary to bring the association's appeal before the Supreme Court.

Reduce Price Berlin Must Pay for Sinking Ships

By International News Service.

Paris, Jan. 5.—The supreme council has agreed to reduce the naval reparations which Germany must make for the sinking of the interned German fleet at Scapa Flow from 400,000 tons to 275,000 tons, according to information from an authentic source today.

A favorable German reply to the latest allied terms is expected tomorrow. It is believed that the final protocol probably will be signed by the end of this week.

DR. MYTHEN DENIES HE CRITICIZED LEGION

Rev. Dr. James Grattan Mythen, executive secretary of the Protestant Friends of Ireland, today denied that he had attacked the American Legion, as was stated in a Boston newspaper. "Far from attacking the legion," said Dr. Mythen, "I praised the legion because I believe firmly in the sentiments expressed by my friend and fellow-legioner, Major Michael A. Kelley, chevalier of the Legion of Honor, Croix de Guerre with palm and Distinguished Service medal. Major Kelley, in a statement to the legion, said men were called to the colors to fight for liberty, self-government and the undictated development of all peoples. These are my sentiments also," said Dr. Mythen.

An Analysis of the Advertising Value of the Boston American

The Boston American is always adopting some progressive policy which is resented by the reactionary element.

The fact that our progressive policies are justified by events and eventually become the accepted conservative policy has nothing to do with the situation, because these policies are always resented in the beginning anyhow, no matter how sound they may be. And the ultra-conservative element of any community is apt to look askance at a progressive newspaper.

A progressive paper has a progressive following, and a progressive following means the young, active, aggressive, thoughtful and successful element of the community.

They are the most valuable clientele for a newspaper and for an advertiser. They represent the element in the community that is thinking and succeeding, which is progressive mentally and materially.

They are the people who are making money, acquiring more property and buying more things. They are the people who are taking particular advantage out of the present mobile state of affairs. They are the young, forward-facing element of the community. They are the men of today and tomorrow. Your old, staid, set, opinionated reactionaries are the men of the past. They have very largely done their thinking, done their development, done their work. They have very largely gotten all they want and bought all they want. They are inaccessible to new ideas, to new enterprises, to new habits of buying, whether it is advertising or not. As far as advertisers are concerned they are as sterile as an outworked farm is to the agriculturist.

The Boston American's progressive people are the fertile field for advertisers to cultivate.

They are the men who are looking around for something new and something good. Their families follow in their footsteps. The money the fathers make, the mothers spend readily for household betterments.

They are looking for what is new and what is good, and all the advertiser has to do is to address them intelligently and convincingly, and not underestimate their shrewdness or their purchasing power.

The Boston American offers this clientele, and it is the best clientele open to the advertiser who is keen enough to appeal to it.

The Boston American has the faith of its readers. Merchants and manufacturers, with worthy products, can share in this faith if they appeal consistently and persistently to the approximately 300,000 subscribers represented in the daily circulation of The Boston American.

These subscribers do the buying for 1,350,000 people. Your merchandise story will meet with a ready response if it appears in their favorite newspaper—the one they buy because they prefer it.

LIFE OF ROXBURY SOLDIER SAVED BY CHIEF OF WAR RISK BUREAU

OFFICIAL ACTS IN HURRY

Rescues Hero, Who Is Near Death, and Brings Joy to Mother

By CHARLES O. POWER.

One soldier boy's life has been saved, a mother made very happy and a home filled with gladness as a result of the visit of R. G. Cholmeley-Jones, director of the War Risk Bureau, to Boston to attend the State conference of the American Legion.

The sick boy lives in Roxbury and is a member of that post. Several months ago he was discharged from the military service suffering from tuberculosis. He felt, his mother believed and his friends thought he had come home to die. He has grown steadily weaker and weaker and his waning strength has been heavily taxed of late by frequent "bad spells."

Today, through the kindly intervention of Director Jones, he is in Parker Hill Hospital, and there is an understanding that he shall receive the best of medical treatment and nursing.

Despair has fled the small circle of his life, courage now keeps vigil with him and hope abides with his mother. They have faith that Uncle Sam is their staunch friend.

This is not only a human interest story, but also tells how red tape was handed a quick and proper workout. A number of instances of seeming neglect of disabled service men were called to the attention of the War Risk Bureau chief during the time he was at the convention. Most of them seemed to be faults of bureau system routine, but the story about the Roxbury boy made instant appeal to him as a case of life or death. He secured the boy's name and address. He asked that Chairman Sullivan of the Roxbury post's sick committees and Mr. O'Connor of the Boston office of the War Risk Bureau accompany him to the boy's home. The writer made a suggestion to Director Jones which won an invitation to go along.

Nobody was at home when the director called the Cornhill office of the Public Health Service. It was a few minutes after 5 o'clock. At Parker Hill Hospital the only doctor on guard was "officer of the day" and could not possibly leave his post. He was not sure where a P. H. S. doctor could be located. This to one of the Boston officials of the bureau. Director Jones took to phone. He is anything but temperamental, but he can be very positive and insistent, also winning, in the quick way his manner. He must have two doctors at once, please. And he would secure a taxi right away and pick them up in a few minutes if they didn't mind.

It was very important, and no doubt everyone connected with the U. S. S. would be anxious to co-operate. That was all, thank you.

CUTTING RED TAPE.

It was a quick trip to the hospital. The doctors were not there, but they had been located and were ready. As we went caressing down the hill the director made this remark, which may or may not be significant:

"Already this trip has been worth while. There should be at least one public health service doctor avail able for emergency calls from sick and disabled men, after 5 o'clock."

"But aren't you being rather rude to old Red Tape and old ground Regular Channels?" I inquired.

"I suppose I am laying myself liable to the awful charge of not adhering strictly to some of the most approved rules of official etiquette," he observed.

Well, the doctors were picked up and soon after were making a thorough examination of the sick boy. With the best of care and treatment there was a good chance for him, they said. He must have the very best, said Director Jones. Then, in the gentlest way, he explained to the mother that he understood her anxiety and desire to have her sick boy at home, but how impossible it would be for her, with her many household duties, to give him the constant attention his case required. He told her of the increased compensation, from $20 to $80 a month, that was to be the boy's portion in the future and of the back compensation provided by the recently enacted Sweet bill, amounting to several hundred dollars, which was coming to him. Furthermore, he gave her an assurance that the boy would get back into his personal attention and would forward the check as soon as possible after his return to Washington.

CAN SEE BOY FREQUENTLY.

Of course, the mother was overcome for a few minutes, the call of the parent and the good to come being so unexpected. But she soon brought herself around to the declaration that she knew he was a good man and that he knew what was best for her boy. The hospital is only a short distance and she can see the son frequently. And if there is anything he wants she should write a personal letter to Director Jones about it. He told her to.

That's about all there is to the story, except this:

"He's a real gentleman, I'll say," confided Chairman Sullivan of the sick committee, to me.

"I'll say so," said I.

"I'll tell the boys of the Roxbury post all about it, you can bet," said he.

"I'll tell the world," said I.

And this is an attempt to keep that promise.

East Boston Ambulance Continues on Way; Victim Taken to Hospital by Milkman

The name of James F. Webber, sixty-seven, of No. 75 Pearl avenue, Beachmont, is on the danger list at the East Boston Relief Hospital, as a result of the man being knocked down by a police ambulance which continued on its way, leaving him unconscious in the street.

Webber, who is a storekeeper for the Boston & Albany Railroad, was picked up by a milkman at Porter and Havre streets and taken to the hospital.

The American learned that the ambulance was on the way to get Edward McShane of No. 575 Saratoga street, who had been beaten and several ribs fractured.

While rounding the corner of Porter and Havre streets, the ambulance struck Webber. Although the man was made unconscious the ambulance continued on its way.

It is interesting to recall that many automobilists have been arrested and given severe sentences for failing to stop and aid persons who have been injured by their machines.

Webber's condition was so serious today that his family was summoned to the hospital.

This news was not secured from police headquarters. It was suppressed by Police Commissioner Curtis. Why?

22 New Patrolmen Dropped; 42 Quit of Own Accord

Some idea of the troubles Police Commissioner Curtis and Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley are having in their efforts to build up a new police force came to light today when it became known that sixty-four of the new policemen have quit or been discharged since the strike.

In violation of the law governing the police department, none of these patrolmen were brought before a trial board.

Despite the efforts of Police Commissioner Curtis to keep all knowledge of police matters from the press, the American learned today that all these sixty-four men who are no longer connected with the force, twelve were fired for drunkenness; ten were discharged for being absent without leave; thirty-six left of their own accord, and six discontinued their connection with the police force for various reasons.

The total number of police on the newly-organized police force is 1,550, or twenty-five more than the total enrolment at the time of the strike. Vacancies are being filled through competitive examinations.

Arthur J. Mahoney, a former member of the traffic squad, and Warren E. Emerson of No. 609 West Broadway, formerly attached to Station 6, South Boston, are two of the three men who were allowed to resign last Friday night.

Both Mahoney and Ellison, according to attaches of police headquarters, were accused of serious charges.

Supt. Crowley Tells His Subordinates Not to Suppress the News

The following conversation was carried on by Superintendent Crowley, Deputy-Superintendent Kimball and a sergeant at police headquarters in the presence of an American reporter today:

"Are you or follows suppressing any crime news," asked the superintendent of his subordinates.

"No, sir," replied the sergeant.

"Well, we don't want any of that done. If the reporters come in here and ask you if you have any news and you have any news on crime, give it to them," ordered the superintendent.

Nothing was said about giving out the general orders of the police department as has been the custom for years. It is only through such general orders that changes in the department become known.

Charlestown Tailor Charged With Attack on 9-Year-Old Girl

An attack on a nine-year-old girl, news of which was kept from the public as part of the new police policy, came to light in Charlestown district court today.

Max Paster, a tailor at Bunker Hill and Sullivan streets, was arraigned on the charge of assault and battery on little Anna Tipping, whose father had sent her to the tailor shop for a suit of clothes.

The father of the child is a captain in the State Guard. As neither side was ready to proceed the case was continued until Wednesday.

(This news was deliberately kept from the public last Friday, when it was news. It was suppressed by order of Police Commissioner Curtis. Why?)

Burglars Loot Two Dorchester Houses and Get $700 in Jewelry

News of another burglary leaked out today, when it became known that jewelry and silverware valued at $700 was stolen last Wednesday in Dorchester.

It is understood that the police have obtained no clew to the identity of the robbers, who broke into the home of George Bradford, No. 478 Columbia road, and that of Harry Grapes in the same house.

The larger part of the valuables stolen were taken in the Bradford home, the remainder being secured in that of Mr. Grapes. The burglars were evidently frightened, as they left their tools lying in front of a trunk which they were trying to open.

(News of this burglary was not secured from the police department. It was suppressed by order of Police Commissioner Curtis. Why?)

GIVEN 18 MONTHS FOR THEFT OF POCKETBOOK

Lee Walker was today sentenced to eighteen months in the House of Correction by Judge Sullivan in the Municipal Court on a charge of snatching a pocketbook valued at $5 from Susan N. Gill of Boston. Walker, who pleaded not guilty, was arrested by Traffic officer Thomas J. Leary after a chase. The police say he snatched the pocketbook in a department store, but was followed to the street by a woman detective. In his chase, they allege, Walker threw the pocketbook. It was recovered in an ashcan.

Runs to Escape From Possible Pickpockets; Lands in Station

'Twas bitter cold in Adams square at 3 a. m. today, but that was not the reason why Atlas Colson of Woburn started a race with himself around the little island. Officer Owens watched him, while Atlas' speed continued to increase. When it passed the speed limit allowed for pedestrians, the officer asked him what was the idea?

But the idea was Atlas' secret. He refused to tell, and was taken to Station 2, where he told the captain he was afraid of pickpockets. He was carrying $200, he said, and deemed it safer to keep moving.

He added that he had been waiting for a Woburn car, but as the Woburn cars do not pass the Adams Square island, Atlas was accommodated in the station house for what remained of the night.

IRISH BATTLE POLICE, SHOOT CONSTABLE

Many Shots Fired and Grenades Thrown in County Clare Attack

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 5.—A constable was wounded when a detachment of police was ambushed near Ballyvaughan in the northern part of County Clare, Ireland, on Saturday night, said a Central News dispatch from Dublin this afternoon. Grenades were thrown and many shots fired.

Following a three-hour battle at Carrigtohill, in County Cork, where the Sinn Feiners destroyed a police station after a sergeant and five constables had been captured, reports were received of attacks upon two other police barracks in County Kerry.

The attack at Carrigtohill was carried out with bombs and rifles. After the constables surrendered, they were ultimately released and the barracks looted of arms and ammunition. None of the constables was wounded. It is not known whether the raiders sustained casualties.

It was the most desperate affray that has happened in a year. The attack culminated in hurling of bombs. One end of the building was blown up and the raiders rushed through the breach and helped themselves to everything they could find inside, taking rifles, revolvers, ammunition and military accoutrements as well as $300.

After ransacking the premises they handcuffed the police. Then they held a "war council" in the barracks to decide whether to shoot the constables. They finally decided to let them live, the leader of the raiding party warning the prisoners

By International News Service.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Jan. 5.—With the completion today of the State's investigation of the murder of J. Stanley Brown, wealthy young oil man, found dead in his automobile on a lonely road near here on the night of December 22, a warrant charging a man previously questioned by the authorities with the murder will be sworn out these in charge of the investigation declared.

The warrant, if issued, will be the third murder warrant sworn to since the finding of Brown's body.

Mrs. Hortense Widow of the murdered man, was the first to be arrested, charged with the murder. After being held several days she was released. Mrs. Cecil Vester was then taken into custody and is now held in jail here, formally charged with killing Brown. Mrs. Vester, denying all knowledge of the crime, has accused Lloyd Prevost, Mrs. Brown's cousin. Prevost, according to "new evidence" uncovered by the authorities, is said to have been seen leaving a local hotel with the victim on the night of the murder.

Acting on instructions from the State prosecutor, police yesterday searched Prevost's home, taking his clothing and "other bits of evidence," the exact nature of which the officers refused to reveal.

Following this raid, the police announced that a third warrant would be issued today.

JAMAICA PLAIN MAN SHOT, ARREST CHINAMAN

Lew Foo, a laundryman, was arraigned in the Roxbury court today charged with shooting William P. Griffin of No. 76 Bickford street, Jamaica Plain.

Griffin, who is twenty-five, is in the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital with a bullet wound in his right hip, said to have been inflicted by the Chinaman on Saturday night. Foo was held in $1,000 until January 13.

It is said Griffin and his brother, George, of No. 1513 Tremont street, went to Foo's laundry, at No. 1592 Tremont street, to get their shirts and collars.

It was said that George had lost his check, and that Foo refused to look for the laundry. The two men started to leave, declaring that they would summon the police, when the Chinaman is alleged to have drawn a revolver and fired.

GEORGE ROLLINS GETS NEW COUNSEL

May Withdraw Exceptions to Open the Way for Request for Pardon

George Rollins, convicted of the murder of Ordway R. Hall, an Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company clerk, appeared before Judge Brown in the Superior Court today. Major Thomas L. Walsh and Judge Thomas H. Connally were named to conduct his further defence.

Rollins has already been sentenced to die for the killing of Hall, but it is felt that in the light of the work done by his brother's counsel and the Boston American he will be pardoned. Jesse Murphy, a convict, serving a sentence in Pennsylvania, has confessed to the murder of Hall.

There is pending a bill of exceptions taken at the last trial and filed by Herbert L. Baker, Rollins' counsel. They have been pending since the death of Attorney Baker.

While nothing definite has been said, it is expected by some that Major Walsh and Judge Connally will withdraw the exceptions and have Rollins ask for sentence. With this done they could place Murphy's confession before Governor Coolidge and ask him to pardon Rollins.

ACCUSE SON OF MANUFACTURER IN LYNN

Charged with breaking, entering and larceny on two counts, Charles Addler, eighteen-year-old son of Harry Addler, a Lynn shoe manufacturer, was today held in $1,000 by the grand jury in the Lynn court. Addler's attorney waived examination.

The complainant was Mrs. Ruth Hartford, of No. 20 Rockaway street, Lynn, who said that she found Addler in her apartments when she returned home about 6:30 p. m. She saw a flashlight moving from room to room, according to the story, and when she entered her own room saw Addler dive under a couch. Her screams drew George H. Green, who lives on the floor below. Green came with a revolver and grappled with Addler, she said, when the latter sprang at him.

Mrs. Hartford missed money, a watch and some trinkets. The money was found on the floor, where the police say, Addler had dropped it, and other missing articles were taken from his pockets, according to the police, when he was searched at headquarters. In Addler's apartments the police found other articles alleged to have been stolen, including a gold watch and women's gloves.

Addler roomed at the Lynn Y. M. C. A. and his parents live on Lawton avenue.

LONG DELAY FOR TRAINS ON NEW HAVEN ROAD

Train service on the New Haven was crippled for more than an hour today at the peak of its incoming business when something went wrong with the wires controlling the signals in the yard. Trains were stalled and delayed until it was reported that they were late anywhere from three to twenty-five minutes.

To further complicate matters some of the through trains, on which traffic is unusually heavy, were delayed anywhere from eight minutes to an hour and a half. The local trouble came when the cables carrying the signal wires grounded on the drawbridge over Fort Point Channel.

MAYORS OF MANY BAY STATE CITIES INAUGURATED

Inauguration of mayors and other city officials took place today in many Massachusetts cities. Among the most important of these functions was the swearing into office of Mayor Peter F. Sullivan of Worcester, former newsboy.

In his inaugural address, delivered at Mechanics Hall before a capacity audience, Mayor Sullivan came out flatly in favor of Sunday sports and Sunday movies.

He urged that Worcester have an auditorium, as already suggested, but that it cost less than the estimated million dollars and recommended that it have a hall for Worcester Post, American Legion.

"WHITE WAY" FOR LAWRENCE.

Mayor William P. White of Lawrence astonished the radicals and pleased the conservatives today in his inaugural address at City Hall.

His program contained none of the extravagant proposals predicted by his political foes, but many able and timely recommendations recognized as faithfully representing the desires of the people.

"I come back to you a better man," said Mr. White, who was arrested for irregularities during his previous administration ten years ago and served seventeen months and four days in jail.

Among his recommendations was one that the tax rate be raised to $30.

Mayor-elect White also advocated the construction of a waiting station for patrons of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, a municipal garage for the machines owned by the city and a new electric lighting system, creating a "White Way" in Lawrence.

CAMBRIDGE MEMORIAL.

Better schooling facilities, street improvements, including new bridges, and the erection of a memorial building in honor of soldiers lost in the war were recommended by Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge in his inaugural. The inauguration, preceded by an informal reception in the Mayor's office, took place at 10 a. m. in the council chamber.

Together with Mayor Quinn, four councilmen and an assessor took the oath of office. The latter were: Councilmen Hugh Anderson, James T. Barrett, Dr. John P. Good and John J. McCarthy, and Assessor Bernard F. Fallon. All six officials were re-elected.

Councillor Barrett, who was elected president of the City Council, presided at the exercises; Rev. Richard J. Splaine of the Sacred Heart Church, Mt. Auburn, was the chaplain, and the oath of office was administered by City Clerk Edward J. Brandon.

With reference to the memorial building, Mayor Quinn said that he should petition the Legislature for authority to borrow outside the city's debt limit of $650,000, so that the project should not interfere with other phases of city development.

EXERCISES AT LYNN.

He recommended wage increases to city laborers, the construction of a filtration plant and repair of the Payson Park Reservoir; new bridges over the Broad Canal and at First street; completion of motorization of the fire department; development of industrial life, especially with regard to factories, and conversion of certain residential districts, which now have single houses, into apartment house districts.

Erection of a permanent memorial to all Lynn soldiers who served in the war was advocated by Mayor Walter H. Creamer in his inaugural address. With the Mayor were inducted into office three councilmen: Michael J. Carroll, Charles W. Ames and Otis W. Dushuttle. Judge Henry T. Lummus administered the oath of office, and Rev. W. Appleton Lawrence of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Lynn, son of Bishop Lawrence, delivered the prayer. Mayor Creamer pointed out that during his administration of the past two years he had reduced the tax rate from $23 to $21.78.

WHITON TAKES OATH AT QUINCY.

Inauguration exercises of the city government of Quincy, held at 10 o'clock, were the quietest in many years, but one new member, Dr. Michael T. Sweeney, newly-elected councilman, being sworn in by City Clerk Emery Crane. All the other members of the body, including Mayor Joseph L. Whiton, continue in office another year.

Mayor Whiton in his inaugural recommended discontinuance of the present police headquarters building and the erection of another building nearer City square; a municipal garage; an appropriation for a playground on the land given for the purpose by Henry M. Faxon; additions to the City Hospital.

He also urges action be taken to establish a licensing board for the issuing of all licenses, and recommends that action be taken for the construction of a memorial hall, dedicated to the boys from Quincy who made the supreme sacrifice during the late World War.

The Melrose Board of Aldermen organized for the coming term with the election of Angier L. Goodwin as president. William T. Wholley, for the past five years assistant auditor, who was selected for the unexpired term of the late Edwin C. Gould, who died last week, was sworn in as city auditor.

Those re-elected are City Clerk W. Dy Hanson Jones, three years; City Collector James W. Murray, City Treasurer William R. Lavender, Clerk of Committees Victor C. Kirmes, each for one year.

After passing a temporary loan order for $175,000, the board adjourned for the inaugural exercises, which will be held in Memorial Hall tonight.

OATH GIVEN AT SALEM.

In Salem, Mayor Dennis J. Sullivan and members of the City Council took the oath of office, administered by City Clerk Entwistle. The Mayor in his address advocated a "pay-as-you-go" financial policy, a bond issue that should total less than the amount in bonds maturing, and salary increases for school teachers.

In Beverly, where Mayor James E. McPherson still has another year of a three-year term to serve, Aldermen Harry E. Leighton, Ward 3, and Daniel N. Linehan, Ward 6, were sworn in, new members to take oath of office. Mayor McPherson in an address recommended a new fire house, new offices for the police department, and other improvements.

NEW WALTHAM MANAGER.

Two newly elected councillors were sworn into office in Peabody: George J. Egan of Ward 3, and Dennis F. Hogan of Ward 4.

Mayor George R. Beal of Waltham was installed in office for a second term, at exercises held in the City Council chamber. Prayer was offered by Rev. James A. Baxter, and Judge Michael J. Connolly administered the oath.

At a meeting of the City Council which followed the exercises, Robert L. Lyons was re-elected president of the council, and City Engineer Henry F. Beal, a brother of the Mayor, was elected city manager, to succeed Clarence A. Bingham. Mr. Bingham has resigned to take up the same office in Watertown, N. Y.

Mayor Beal lauded the city manager form of government as it has worked out in Waltham. He predicted an increase in the tax rate soon, but declared he believed it would be less than $30. He praised the schools, declared that teachers were underpaid, and said that a part of the $400 increase asked for by them would be granted. He voiced a caution against "inside movements tending to overthrow the government," understood to refer to the country-wide "Red" agitation.

A plea that the city take measures to honor the graves of Civil War heroes, in view of the fast dwindling ranks of surviving comrades who have been accustomed to perform this pious task, was contained in a letter read at the inaugural session. The letter was from John D. Sinclair, Waltham Camp, Sons of Veterans. The writer requested that the cemetery commissioners be entrusted with this task on Memorial Day. There are five hundred graves of Civil War dead in the city.

DEMOCRATS TREATED UNFAIRLY, SAYS NILAND

Representative Thomas A. Niland of East Boston today sent a letter to Speaker Joseph E. Warner of the House of Representatives protesting against the makeup of Republican committees in the past and demanding "fair and just treatment" during the 1920 session, which convenes this week. As evidence of the alleged injustice which the Democratic members have suffered in the selection of legislative committees, Representative Niland asserted that, while they constitute one-fourth the entire membership of the House, they last year received but two of the fifteen places on the Committee on Rules. The Democrats will have 60 out of the 240 members of the incoming House.

$231,285,000 N. E. BUILDING IN PAST YEAR

Expert Reports Increase of About 28 Per Cent. in Investments

Figures published by F. T. Miller, president of the F. W. Dodge Company, show that during the past year New England increased her investments for building purposes about 28 per cent, but that there has been a decline of about 20 per cent. in the actual volume of building activity.

The expert said that because of the war general construction fell off rapidly all over the country, though there was increased activity in certain lines of building.

The chief reasons for this decline in construction were drastic regulations against the use of fuel for building purposes by the Fuel Administration; the removal of materials by the War Industries Board; the Federal Reserve Board's regulations against lending money for anything but war purposes, and the transfer of man power to war activities.

Regarding New England, Mr. Miller said:

"Contracts awarded from the beginning of 1919 up to and including December 18, 1919, in the New England States amounted to $231,285,000. Of this amount, $73,469,000 was for residential buildings to the number of 10,995; $65,843,000 was for manufacturing buildings to the number of 1,336; the remainder, $91,973,000, covered 7,909 building projects of miscellaneous kinds.

"In this district 25 per cent. of the year's total of contracts was awarded in the first half of the year, and 65 per cent. in the second half. The largest amount of business for a single month occurred in October, when contracts were awarded to the amount of $32,384,000.

"The average annual amount of contract awards for the five years previous to 1919 has been approximately $180,000,000. If the total of each of these years be expressed in terms of equivalent value in 1919, this average would come to about $230,000,000.

"Consequently the year 1919 shows an advance of about 28 per cent. in money invested in construction over the average amount for the five preceding years, and a decline of about 20 per cent. in the actual volume of building activity as compared with the preceding period.

"Contemplated and projected buildings, to the amount of $875,000,000, have been reported for this district in 1919. Two-thirds of this amount gives $250,000,000 for the amount of contract awards that might be reasonably expected in 1920."

MUSICIAN DIES AFTER VISIT TO SALOON

Albert Reinhart, Formerly of Boston Symphony Orchestra, Expires in New York

Albert Reinhart, veteran Boston musician and formerly a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, died in a taxicab while on the way to a hospital in New York City, according to a news dispatch. Death was attributed to heart disease and occurred while Reinhart was returning to this city from Norfolk, Va., where he had spent the holidays with his son, who is connected with the U. S. Merchant Marine.

E. L. Barrows, proprietor of a rooming house at No. 45 St. Botolph street, where Reinhart lived, said that the musician had been suffering with heart disease for some time and was receiving treatment. While playing with the orchestra of "Monte Cristo, Jr.," at the Boston Opera House recently Reinhart collapsed, Barrows said.

The bass violin was the instrument played by Mr. Reinhart. For several years he was one of the accompanists of Mme. Melba on her concert tours. He was a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for eight years and two years of the orchestra of the Boston Grand Opera Company.

Robert C. Cotter, driver of the taxi, said that Reinhart was ill when he started to carry him from the Pennsylvania station to the Grand Central terminal. On the way they stopped at a saloon and had a number of drinks, he said. When in an apparent attack of heart trouble Reinhart dropped to the floor, the driver placed him in the cab and started for Roosevelt Hospital, but he was dead when they arrived. In Reinhart's clothing were found a musician's union card, $60 in cash and a railroad ticket to Boston.

A memorandum written on stationery of the Keystone Hotel, Philadelphia, which was taken to indicate that the musician realized the danger of his affliction, bore the words:

"My address is Albert Reinhart, No. 45 St. Botolph street, Boston. My son's address is George A. Reinhart, No. 493 Boissevain street, Norfolk, Va."

Thirteen stringed instruments were found in the room of the dead man on St. Botolph street. He attended the music festival in Maine every year. His father was formerly conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

HEIFETZ GIVES MASTERLY CONCERT

Jascha Heifetz, the celebrated Russian violinist, gave one of his masterly concerts at Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon. As at all Heifetz's concerts there was standing room only. Heifetz's technique was splendidly exhibited when he played "Elegie," by Popper-Auer. One of the best-received selections was "Chaconne," for violin alone, by Bach, this masterpiece being especially pleasingly rendered.

Though an audience generally endures the first part of a violinist's program as a sort of limbering-up process, a Heifetz audience, from the very beginning of the program, is drawn out of itself into intense interest by this brilliant musician's genius. And so Heifetz immediately won the musical temperament of his audience in the first number, No. 11 Sonata in G, by Grieg, with three movements.

Followed Larghetto Lamentoso, by Godowsky; Coquetterie, by Achron; Melodie, by Stokowski; Waltz Mignon, by Paul Juon, and Fileuse, by Popper-Auer.

The program concluded with Romance, by Rachmaninoff, and the Witches' Dance, by Paganini.

Heifetz's five short pieces proved his pure beauty of tone, his wonderful sensibility to the voice of the violin, his keen sense of modulation and brilliancy of transition.

Samuel Chotzinoff was pianist.

Mr. Heifetz announces his final concert of the season for Sunday afternoon, March 28.

Who's Who ON BOSTON'S NEW POLICE FORCE

MAX SINGER.

Max Singer, night patrolman in the financial district, says that his duties so far as a member of the new police force have not proved quite as exciting as the days when he served as chief petty officer in the naval aviation station at Killingholme, England. Singer spent a year abroad, and it happened to be during the same period that the Germans were making a specialty of air raids. Three times the Zeps indulged in a bombing festival at Killingholme, while Singer was with the colors, but he successfully dodged the Hun confetti, and also various dirigibles which failed to return to the Fatherland. Singer is married and lives in Brighton.

TEMPERATURE IS GOING UP, BUT NOT FAR

There will be no sudden let-up in the freezing temperature which started to nip the ends of Bostonians' noses early today when it was five above at 5 a. m. For the next twenty-four hours there will be a slowly rising schedule, which, according to Weatherman Smith, may reach the twenty above point some time tomorrow. It was thirteen at 10 a. m. today in Boston.

Off Nantucket a disturbance in the atmospheric conditions has caused snow flurries in the Cape Cod section. Scattered rains and snows are reported in the West and the Southwest with clear skies elsewhere. In the Mississippi River sections it continues very cold. Temperatures below freezing are reported in several parts of Eastern Canada and Northern New England. Freezing weather is also reported as far South as Northern Florida.

Stonecliffe, in the British Northwest, reported the coldest of any place today with 20 below, while in New England Northfield, Vt., boasted of 18 marks below. Other frigid places were Greenville, Me., at 6 below; Burlington, Vt., 6; Concord, N. H., 2.

The highest in New England was Nantucket at 28 above, with Galveston, Tex., and Key West, Fla., the highest in the country, with 52. Tampa, Fla., reported 36, Jacksonville 24, Pensacola 26 and New Orleans 30.

LEWIS EXPLAINS ENDING OF COAL STRIKE

Acting President of United Mine Workers Reports to Recess Convention

By International News Service.

Columbus, O., Jan. 5.—"While protesting in our hearts against what we believed to be the unjust attitude of the government, we decided to submit to the inevitable," declared John L. Lewis, acting president, and William Greene, secretary-treasurer, in their joint report, submitted here today to the recess convention of the United Mine Workers of America.

The report, which dealt in chronological order with developments since the adoption of the miners' wage-scale demands at Cleveland last September, was read by Secretary-Treasurer Greene.

The joint report detailed the plan proposed by President Wilson as a basis of settlement for the recent national coal strike and informed the convention delegates as to the full scope and meaning of the President's proposal, together with the reasons why the miners' leaders accepted it.

UNABLE TO FOLLOW RULES.

"The course which your committee and the officers of the organization were directed to follow by the adoption of the goals committee's report at the Cleveland convention was based on the assumption that we had both the moral and legal right to enforce our demands in case of disagreement between the miners and the operators by ceasing to work on November 1," said the joint report.

"No one could foresee the turn events have taken and the necessity in meeting the new and unexpected situations which have arisen. It has been found quite impossible to follow the rigid, inflexible policy laid down by the Cleveland convention.

"We have been forced to adjust ourselves to a changed situation not contemplated or considered when the original plans and policies were adopted.

"The Lever law, a wartime measure is still in effect. Under its provisions the government exercised its wartime powers and was fully supported by the judicial, military, legislative and executive branches of the government.

IGNORANT OF LAW.

"The court construing the Lever law to mean that where two men agreed to quit mining coal they were guilty of a conspiracy and subject to the punishment prescribed by the Lever law.

"We are confident that it was not generally understood by our membership that those wartime measures were still in effect or that the Lever law denied our membership the right to strike or applied to them in anyway whatever.

Touching upon the President's coal commission, the report said:

"We entertain high hopes that the decisions and report of the President's commission will be so fair and just as to meet with general approval among our membership."

Taft Is for League, With or Without Reservations

New York, Jan. 5.—"I am in favor of the League of Nations as it is, without any reservations at all, but I am also in favor of it with the fourteen reservations. I want the league, reservations or no reservations, and I do not want it obstructed by remedial differences," said former President William Howard Taft in an address in the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Mr. Taft said the chief objection to the reservations is that they are too "bumptious" in spirit. He recommended that they be revised on more diplomatic lines, leaving out personal and political bias and the "offensive assumption of power on the part of the United States."

New Health Building Candy for Young and Old

Sensational Success in New York Now Obtainable in this City.

From present signs it looks as though Partola, the new combination of laxative and antiseptic medicines in the form of mint candies, would enjoy the same popularity here as it does in the West. Local druggists predict a heavy demand and base their opinions on the remarkable advantages of this delicious confection.

When consulted, a representative said that Partola was a scientific improvement over the old-fashioned laxatives in that it not only does everything that the best laxatives can do, but it is an internal antiseptic as well. It tends to overcome the intestinal germs and poisons which originate in the digestive tract, thus making the organs antiseptic and giving invaluable protection against scores of diseases.

Despite the fact that Partola is such an efficient safeguard for the health of young and old, it has no taste or odor of medicine whatever. It is a pleasant candy lozenge—as delicious as bon-bons. As it comes in 25c, 50c and $1.00 boxes at all drug-stores it is no more expensive than ordinary laxatives and, of course, is much more valuable on account of its double duty (laxative and internal antiseptic) and its delicious taste.

PAISH OPENS FIGHT IN WASHINGTON FOR LOAN TO SAVE EUROPE

MISSION IS 'PURELY PRIVATE'

Washington, Jan. 5.—Sir George Paish, the eminent British financial expert, has arrived in Washington to push his campaign for the $35,000,000,000 international loan to save bankrupt Europe.

In an interview with a representative of the American Sir George said:

"I am here to ascertain how far America can assist in the European situation—how far it will be possible for this country to grant additional credits to continental Europe."

When asked if he planned to discuss the loan with members of Congress, the British expert said:

"I dare say I shall see some of the Congress people, but only for the purpose of ascertaining their point of view. I will try to discover where we stand, where the world stands. I already have toured several of the Continental countries in order to get the complete world view."

AS TO CALLING ON WILSON.

"Do you contemplate a call at the White House to confer with President Wilson?"

"The President is sick. I believe. I should like to convey my wishes to the President. I sincerely hope he will soon be better."

When Sir George's attention was called to the statement given out by the British Mission in New York that he is not in America in any official capacity and does not represent the British Treasury, he said: "That is quite sound." He added that he was here as a representative of the Fight the Famine Councils.

The English financier said, by way of parenthesis, that he had not received any assurance of support from influential government officials or prominent financiers in this country, adding: "I have not seen any of them."

AGREES WITH LLOYD GEORGE.

Sir George was shown a copy of a press dispatch reporting Lloyd George as saying in the House of Comons that in the task of rehabilitation of Europe "it is essential to the success of such a proposal that the United States should contribute that part of the expenditure which is to be incurred in dollars. Urgent representations have been made to the United States government."

Sir George said he had read the speech and quite agreed with it. Asked if he was here with any authority from Lloyd George, he replied:

"No. I am here in a purely private capacity."

Sir George confirmed the American's statement that the amount of the loan was $35,000,000,000, but said "America will have to decide for herself what her share will be."

The $35,000,000,000, he added, includes the amounts necessary for the European countries to repay their war debts. Great Britain and the United States both have loans of $10,000,000,000, he explained, but $3,000,000,000 of the amount lent by Great Britain was borrowed from the United States leaving a net total of $15,000,000,000 to be repaid.

NOT HERE FOR PROPAGANDA.

"Will you take any definite action here to create sentiment in favor of the proposed loan?" Sir George was asked.

"The only action I shall take will be that, in obtaining information, I shall give information."

He added that he did not contemplate any speeches or other propaganda work in the United States.

The War Finance Corporation's announcement of plans for loans to the extent of $17,000,000 to American export manufacturers for aiding in the industrial rehabilitation of Europe was shown the British financier. He commented:

"That will help some. One of the difficulties about getting production restarted lies in the shortage of transportation facilities. The exportation of locomotives to Holland, which this loan will provide for, is quite excellent. Europe needs all the locomotives you can spare."

"TO AWAKEN THE WORLD."

Sir George then launched into a further explanation of his mission to the United States. He said:

"We are trying to awaken the world to the danger which confronts it. Our work is supplementary to that of Mr. Herbert Hoover. He has been trying to awaken everybody to the danger of Europe, to awaken Europe to its own danger.

"I am here to make inquiries for the Fight the Famine Council. My plan" (the $35,000,000,000 international loan) "is designed to adjust the world economic situation. But this plan is merely up for discussion. It points a way out of the difficulty in which the world finds itself. If any other way out can be found, so much the better.

"But it is not without value to know that there is a way out. Whether the nations will adopt my plan as the way out is for the future to decide.

MORE DANGEROUS EVERY DAY.

"When the situation gets so critical that there has got to be a plan, this, with other plans, doubtless will be considered.

"The situation in Europe every day is getting more dangerous not only economically, but politically, and the need for action is becoming more and more urgent."

Sir George asked that the published statements that he is financial adviser to the British Exchequer be corrected. He explained that he occupied that post in the early years of the war, but is no longer connected with the British government in an official capacity.

ENDORSES GOODE'S PESSIMISM.

A press dispatch from London, giving an account of a recent address by Sir William Goode, British Director of Relief, was shown to Paish. Sir William, who recently returned to England from a tour of the war-impoverished countries of Continental Europe, was quoted as having said that "unless the allied and associated governments provide credits for food and raw materials, Central Europe is likely to become a desolate waste of seeding thistles." Sir William continued:

"England cannot do anything likely to be effectual unless the United States extends credits in proportion to her means.

"The crisis in Central Europe is of such dimensions and complexity as to defy isolated or individual effort"

Congress Will Not Guarantee Any Loan, Declares Utah Senator

Washington, Jan. 5.—Sir George Paish's announcement that the stupendous sum of $35,000,000,000 is the amount of the international loan which must be raised to save bankrupt Europe, and that the United States must subscribe nearly one-half of the whole loan, focused attention here today on the bad foreign debts already owed to this government.

According to Senator Smoot of Utah probably the leading financial expert of the Senate, if the war loans to the allied nations other than Great Britain and France ever are repaid, "they will be very slow indeed in coming in."

Total Now Over $2,000,000,000.

The aggregate of these loans is $2,332,444,716. The countries to which they were made and the amount owed by each are:

Russia	$187,729,750
Belgium	343,445,000
Cuba	10,000,000
Czecho-Slovakia	55,230,000
Greece	48,236,629
Italy	1,620,922,372
Liberia	5,000,000
Rumania	25,000,000
Serbia	26,750,465

While it has been believed there is less hope of repayment by Russia than by any of the other countries, Senator Smoot thinks the Russian debt will be repaid sooner than the obligations of some of the other countries. He said:

"The other loans are not bad in the same degree as the Russian debt, but conditions in some of the other countries are such that it will be almost impossible for them to pay. I think the Russian debt will be paid sooner than some of the other countries."

The United States holds nothing more than the promise of the Kerensky regime to pay the millions loaned to Russia. Senator Smoot continued:

"With her vast resources, however, Russia's obligations to foreign governments will be taken care of when she gets on her feet again. She will have to do this to maintain her standing among the nations of the world.

Sees Plea to Cancel Debt.

"What I expect to happen is that the foreign governments will let these loans run along for ten or twelve years and then ask the United States to forgive them of their debts."

"Do you include Great Britain and France in this class?" the Senator was asked.

"Hardly Great Britain," he replied, "but I would not be surprised to see France do it."

The Senator added that Great Britain owes the United States $4,300,000,000 "and will be very slow in paying." France owes $3,047,974,777.

Sir George's mission to the United States to get this Government to subscribe $15,000,000,000 to the proposed international loan of $35,000,000,000 was characterized by Senator Smoot as a "dream of some of our internationalists."

Power All Lies in Congress.

If the King of England himself came to America on such a mission it would do no good, said the Senate financial authority. Jurisdiction in such matters rests solely with Congress, and of the attitude of that body Senator Smoot said:

"Congress is not going to appropriate any money whatever to make loans to any foreign governments of any kind. If they get the money in this country they will have to get it through the regular banking and commercial channels."

Asked if he thought there was a possibility that Congress might be willing to authorize the Government to guarantee private loans under the Paish scheme, he replied:

"Congress is not going to make the Government the guarantor of any foreign loan. The indebtedness of the world is not going to be pooled, with the United States guaranteeing the whole thing. No matter what country asks it, it will not be done. That is a dream of some of our internationalists."

ASKS U. S. TO MAKE BRITAIN SOLVENT

Paish Loan Plan Impossible, Finance Expert Finds, on Analyzing Effects

By BOERSIANER.

A concrete answer to Sir George Paish's proposition is that continental Europe is completely bankrupt, that Great Britain is also insolvent, but may be made solvent if America continues to be her social, political and economic helpmeet.

In effect, Sir George proposes a loan of $35,000,000,000 for countries that are demoralized economically and threatened with utter economic annihilation.

Descending to details, his postulates are not less infantile. But a parenthesis must be opened here for the information of the reader.

Sir George Paish was terrified into incoherency at the outbreak of the war. He hurried from England to the United States with all manner of incomprehensible plans to collect European credits here, to raise loans, to get gold. Nobody understood what he was trying to do.

For four years thereafter he was quiescent.

PAISH TERRIFIED AGAIN.

Evidently the condition of Europe at present has reterrorized him, as well it may. But, taking him seriously this time, who but America could be any sort of guarantee for the loan of $35,000,000,000 he wants?

Surely not Great Britain, who in all modesty will underwrite $5,000,000,000 of it, or one-third that of the United States. Great Britain will be too much occupied in putting her own house in order, in arranging her own affairs that she may dominate the world economically.

America would be virtually responsible for the $35,000,000,000; would in all likelihood throw $25,000,000,000 after that large part of $9,500,000,000 now loaned to England.

AMERICA HAS THE GOLD.

Just what Sir George means by "the bonds would be supplemental to gold" is entirely nebulous. Supplemental in what way? America has one-third of the world's gold, or about $3,200,000,000. Supposing all the $5,500,000,000 yellow metal could be had to fortify the loan, there would be still a large deficit. Where, then, would be the supplement? Is supplement an interchangeable word with wind?

And the bonds are to yield all of 5 per cent. A scramble for them is easily imaginable when the prior securities of the American government may be bought on a 5 per cent. basis.

To impel the deal, Sir George warns that America cannot be viable without Europe, must sell in Europe in order to exist. Sir George is possibly unaware that normally the people of the United States themselves consume 90 per cent of what they grow and make.

ENGLISH POUND WOULD RISE.

Sir George acknowledges that the English pound would rise to $4.50 were the loan floated. He modestly underestimates the contingent advance. With America forgiving her creditors in Europe and with the fresh loan proposed by Sir George, the English pound would re-ascend, for then the chief beneficiary would be England, not the United States.

But there would be a prerequisite to these financial transactions. The treaty of Versailles would need be radically revised to preclude another war.

Is the European continent to be left in its misery? Emphatically no. But before more of America's wealth is poured into Europe there should be a treaty which will insure general satisfaction and harmony: in other words, permanent reconstruction.

TECHNICAL PEACE DESIRABLE.

No virtual peace exists between the United States and the Central Powers, technical peace is, of course, desirable. But it is not economically exigent. Were a treaty signed tomorrow, it would not alter trade relations, since such business as can be done or could be done with official amenities declared, is doing.

Directly the armistice was announced, the commercial and financial ban was lifted by President Wilson. The immediate status of commerce and finance is not involved. Pleas and arguments to the contrary are interested fustian; clearly motived by ulterior schemes.

This conclusion is not merely personal. International financiers, intimately consulted, admit it. Business records and statistics prove it.

Versailles should take the initiative in revision.

FALL RIVER DOFFERS AND FIREMEN RAISED

Fall River, Jan. 5.—The unions of dofters and stationary firemen have received satisfactory adjustments of their wage and working condition grievances from the Cotton Manufacturers' Association. The firemen have been adjusted to a standard wage of $35 a week.

Readjustments retroactive to December 1 have been granted to the dofters and mean raises of seven to ten per cent. for nearly all workers in this class. This is in addition to the general raise of 12½ per cent. granted by the manufacturers after the general one-day strike here the first of last month.

BANKER ACCUSED AS SPY COMES TO AMERICA

By L. R. MURDOCH.

Boston American Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable Dispatch.

London, Jan. 5.—Sir Edgar Speyer, multi-millionaire banker and investor, has expatriated himself and gone to America to live, according to Daily Mail, one of the world's greatest financiers, who in behalf of Bernato Brothers bought the Speyer Brothers' huge interest in the London underground electric railway, controlling London's tubes, the price being estimated at many millions.

"The Speyer interests were immense," said Joel, "but they did not hold the controlling stock. Sir Edgar is now in America and I do not believe there is any likelihood of his ever returning to Britain."

Sir Edgar became chairman of the underground system in 1906 and resigned in 1915, owing to the clamor raised against him and his family, he being a native of Germany. He protested to Asquith, then Premier, against the charges of disloyalty and treachery, but asked him to accept his resignation as Privy Councillor and to revoke his baronetcy conferred upon him in 1906.

Asquith, replying, stated that the King was not prepared to accede to his request.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore, cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., Block 511, St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the information necessary.

ADVISES FORMER KAISER ON PLAN FOR DEFENCE

Dr. Kriege Prepares for Trial of Germany's Late War Lord

(Copyright, 1920, by International News Service.)

Berlin, Jan. 5.—Germany's greatest international lawyer, doctor of jurisprudence, has been selected to lead the counsel for the defence of William Hohenzollern, the former Kaiser, is extradited from Holland and placed on trial before an international tribunal. Dr. Kriege was said today by Royalists to be in close touch with the ex-Emperor at Amerongen.

The monarchists seek to give the impression that the ex-Kaiser is not thinking of the possibility of being tried and has taken the attitude that "he will not cross the bridge until he comes to it."

Nevertheless, it was learned from an authentic source that Dr. Kriege is already advising the former Emperor as to his defence in the event that Holland gives him up.

A PERSONAL FRIEND.

The lawyer bears the title of "acting private councillor" to the ex-Kaiser. For years he was the close personal friend of William and often gave him legal advice, before the collapse of Germany.

Under the old regime, Dr. Kriege was chief of the legal section of the Berlin Foreign Office.

He drew up the German documents at the outbreak of the war and also wrote the Breast Litovsk treaty which Germany and the Russian Bolshevik government signed after the Soviet came into power with the fall of Kerensky.

MAY CALL ON NEUTRALS.

It is believed that if the extradition proceedings are successful, Dr. Kriege will be assisted by an imposing array of counsel. It is probable that lawyers from some other countries that were neutral during the war will be called in, not only for their legal knowledge but for the moral support that their presence would lend.

It has been suggested that prominent legal lights of the Dutch and Swiss bar might be asked to assist. President Ebert has sent a letter to Premier Clemenceau asking for a revision of the peace treaty terms regarding the extradition of William and threatening to retire from the presidency of Germany if the allies persist "ruthlessly" in carrying out their demands according to information from a confidential, but well informed source. This letter is said to have been dispatched on Friday.

1,500 MAY FACE TRIAL.

Germany already has received a list of names of persons whom the allies seek to extradite for trial. The list, which came through neutral diplomatic sources, contains the names of 1,500 persons, including 300 private soldiers.

Socialist leaders, for political reasons, have willingly discussed the delivery of officers of the old regime for trial, but the discovery that some of the 300 were Socialists themselves proved a bombshell.

President Ebert is said to have informed Premier Clemenceau that the German government could not attempt to carry out the delivery of all the persons wanted.

SALVAGE SHIP'S CARGO, TWO OTHERS FLOATED

Rockland, Me., Jan. 5. — After several hours' work, the three-masted schooner Lavinia M. Snow, which went ashore at Abaco, in the Bahamas, was floated by the cutter Yamacraw, according to word received here by the I. S. Snow Company. Word was sent by her captain, A. Anderson. The ship will be repaired, he stated.

The lumber-laden schooner Gilbert Stancliffe, which went ashore in North Haven thoroughfare last Wednesday and was subsequently floated and beached, was towed to this port for repairs.

The schooner Mary E. Olys, which piled on the rocks at the entrance to Cape Porpoise Harbor last Thursday, can be saved, it is believed. The cargo of granite will also be salvaged.

DOORBELL DRIVE OPENS TONIGHT IN ALLSTON

Legion Members to Canvass District to Raise $50,000 for a Building

Tonight one-sixth of all the doorbells in the Brighton-Allston district will be rung. Members of the American Legion will do the ringing. They intend to ring every doorbell in the district during the week and repeat the performance in the following three weeks until every resident in the district has been recorded on the drive for the memorial building fund.

The amount required is $50,000. Pledges for about $9,000 have been received. The post has been offered good bargains for several centrally-located sites.

The purpose of the building is to serve not only the former service men, but all the people of the district, as a community house. There is no such thing in Brighton or Allston at the present time.

The plans call for a seating capacity hall of 1,000, offices, reception rooms, swimming pool, gymnasium, library and schoolrooms. Classes in civil service, business courses, English and history are on the educational program.

One of the strong appeals of the Legion boys to the merchants is: "Help us to help the district."

U. S. NOT ON LIST OF "ASSOCIATED POWERS"

Paris, Jan. 5.—Hugh Wallace, United States ambassador, has formally requested the supreme council to cease addressing notes in the name of the "Principal Allied and Associated Powers" until such notes had been approved by Washington. The council has acceded to the request, it was learned today. Ambassador Wallace contended that the inclusion of the term "Associated Powers" in the notes carried the inference that the United States approved the contents.

POOR GRATEFUL FOR CHRISTMAS BASKETS

Praise American for Making Warm and Plentiful Holiday Dinner Possible

Many letters telling of the great happiness brought into the homes of 27,000 needy persons by the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund have been received by this newspaper from grateful recipients. Each missive explains the joy which the much needed food gave to hungry women and children.

From the Rev. Father J. H. Harrigan of St. Ambrose Catholic Church, Dorchester, the following letter has been received: "It was certainly a pleasure to see the happy faces as well as to hear the grateful remarks of those who were the fortunate recipients of the Christmas baskets offered through the courtesy of the Boston American. The St. Ambrose Parish house at Fields Corner was thronged afternoon and evening by residents from every section of Dorchester, all expressing gratitude of the highest kind to the American. Through your generosity many a home was made bright and cheerful."

PRAISE QUALITY OF FOOD.

An interesting letter has been received from Maria A. Collins, a nurse employed by the Boston Consumptives' Hospital. It reads, "I wish to thank you in behalf of all my poor patients and their families for the good dinners received through your fund. They all said the chickens were the best thy ever ate besides all the other goodies added. Hoping God will bless all who contributed, I am."

John W. McMahon of Hyde Park, an agent of the Boston Overseers of the Poor, writes: "I want to thank you for your generous contribution of Christmas baskets to the Hyde Park district and I feel safe in saying that the poor of our district never were cared for so well at Christmas time as they were this year and I don't think the Boston American will be forgotten for a long time because of its liberality to the poor. I feel that several families were made happy who otherwise would have had a lonesome Christmas."

From a family in Roxbury came the following: "You don't know how happy you have made us all. We certainly appreciate your sending a ticket for a Christmas dinner and I can never thank you enough."

Another family in Roxbury, in thanking the American, wrote, "It was the best Christmas we ever had."

"TREAT" FOR CHILDREN.

"It was a swell dinner," wrote still another Roxbury woman. She added: "I got my basket at the Municipal Building, corner Dudley and Vine streets, Roxbury. Mrs. Elizabeth Stearns gave me the basket and I want to thank her personally through your paper. Her kind face and cheerful disposition was able to make any hungry heart feel good Christmas Eve. May God bless all for your kind work for the poor, and I hope they will all appreciate it."

"It was a treat to my four children and myself," another recipient wrote.

"I hope I will be able to help some other family next year," said another woman who received a basket.

"The children and I prayed Christmas morning for you all," was contained in another letter.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION REFUSES AID TO BERGER

The Boston Central Labor Union refused to consider a resolution calling for its support in a demand that Massachusetts Congressmen use their votes and influence to prevent the unseating of Victor L. Berger.

FEAR NEW BEDFORD WHALER HAS FOUNDERED

New Bedford, Jan. 5.—It is believed here that the three-masted whaling schooner Arthur V. S. Woodruff, which sailed from New Bedford November 6 last, for the Cape Verde Islands, and long overdue there, has foundered. Two other whalers, sailing two weeks before the Woodruff, completed the voyage in less than a month.

The Woodruff carried a list of twenty persons, a majority of whom were passengers. There were only five or six experienced whaling men in the crew.

WAR HEROES PLAN TRIP OVERSEAS IN LIFEBOAT

London, Jan. 5.—A soldier, a sailor and a thirty-foot lifeboat—they hope to travel all the way from Hull to America and be the next international heroes.

The men are George Stoutt and William Mahew, and they won all this courage in the great war. They hope to start early in the new year, they announce, and carry four months' rations.

DON'T SUFFER WITH NEURALGIA

Use Soothing Musterole

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister.

Many doctors and nurses from here recommend Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). It is always dependable.

30c and 60c jars; hospital size $2.50.

Quit Laxatives, Purges; Try NR

NR Tonight—Tomorrow Feel Right

It is a mistake to continually dose yourself with so-called laxative pills, calomel, oil, purges and cathartics and force bowel action. It weakens the bowels and liver and makes constant dosing necessary.

Why don't you begin right today to overcome your constipation and get your system in such shape that daily purging will be unnecessary? You can do so if you get a 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and take one each night for a week or so. NR Tablets do much more than merely cause pleasant easy bowel action. This medicine acts upon the digestive as well as eliminative organs—promotes good digestion, causes the body to get the nourishment from all the food you eat, gives you a good, hearty appetite, straightens the liver, overcomes biliousness, regulates kidney and bowel action and gives the whole body a thorough cleaning out. This accomplished you will not have to take medicine every day. An occasional NR tablet will keep your body in condition and you can always feel your best.

Try Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and prove this. It is the best bowel medicine that you can use and costs only 25c per box, containing enough to last twenty-five days. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is mild, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

Quick, Harmless Way to Remove Wrinkles

This season brings wrinkles to many sensitive skins that are much exposed to winds and changing temperatures. To take an effective wrinkle remover, mix 2 ounce of powdered saxolite and a half pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in the solution—immediately every wrinkle is affected. It acts wonderfully in erasing facial muscle lines, also, the lotion possessing remarkable astringent and tonic properties. Use it once a day for a while and see how it will improve your facial contour.

This simple lotion cannot harm the most delicate skin. The treatment itself leaves no trace—no one guesses the secret of your increasing youthful appearance. But be sure to ask the druggist for the powdered saxolite.—Advertisement.

REFUSES TO PUT NAME ON DEAN CASE PETITION

East Jaffrey Selectmen Are Defied by Delcie D. Bean

East Jaffrey, N. H., Jan. 5.—Delcie D. Bean, of the firm of Bean & Symonds, manufacturers of match blocks, who has figured actively behind the scenes in the Dean murder inquiry, has at last openly defied the Board of Selectmen and denounced the people's petition for a reopening of the case.

Bean became so incensed when the selectmen sent petitions to his factory that he delivered public orations in the postoffice, in the square and on a train.

"I won't sign that petition and nobody can make me sign it," he shouted. "Every person who puts his name on that is a Bolshevist. I'll let the selectmen see that they can't run me."

Some of Bean's remarks would not look well in print. He indulged in personalities. He seemed to take as a personal affront the campaign being waged by his fellow-citizens, all taxpayers and loyal Americans, to avenge the murder of Dr. William Kendrick Dean, a respected and patriotic American citizen, who was killed because he attempted to expose German spies.

WAS NOT ASKED TO SIGN.

Nobody had asked Bean to sign the petition. He had come out of his way to denounce it and all those who are eager to clear up the murder mystery. He insisted on injecting himself into the affair. He seemed to forget the fact that the right to petition is one of the most sacred enjoyed by Americans and one of the fundamental principles of the Constitution.

Hundreds of Bean's neighbors and townspeople and tax-payers in adjoining towns have voluntarily signed the petition but somehow the petition blanks seemed to be red flags in the eyes of Bean. His temper created what the villagers termed "scenes." Postmaster Russell B. Henchman also removed a petition from the wall in the postoffice and was criticised for doing it. Bean and Henchman are among the most conspicuous in what is locally known as "the soft pedal squad."

Whenever any conferences were held by the opposition in connection with the Dean case, Bean and his partner, Merrill G. Symonds, have usually attended. The records at the Boston office of the United States Department of Justice show that Symonds went to Concord and Washington on behalf of Judge Charles L. Rich, cashier of the Monadnock National Bank, in connection with the Dean case.

ADMISSION BY RICH.

When examined in Boston by Federal agents Judge Rich was asked if Bean or Symonds had gone to Concord and Washington in his behalf. He replied that Bean could not have gone because he was in a sanitarium in Melrose, Mass., and that it must have been Mr. Symonds. That constituted an admission by Rich himself.

Prior to the Grand Jury investigation of the Dean case last April Rich and Bean and Symonds held a conference, which was also attended by John E. Townsend, W. E. Webster and Homar S. White. At that conference the advisability of holding a Grand Jury inquiry was discussed, though it has never been made clear to the taxpayers how a group of citizens, no matter how influential locally, could hope to decide whether here should or should not be a Grand Jury hearing.

Later Bean and Symonds and some of the others met County Solicitor Pickard and Attorney-General Young across the Massachusetts line at the Winchendon Hotel in Winchendon. Agents of the Department of Justice got wind of this meeting and hastened there to see what was going on.

ACCUSED OF SPYING.

They engaged an adjoining room and one of the Department of Justice men took shorthand notes while lying prone with his ear pressed against a crack in the door. When Attorney-General Young and County Solicitor Pickard heard of this Federal ambush they were furious. They accused the Federal men of "spying" and "putting a dictagraph on them."

As a matter fact, the Federal man did not use a dictagraph but would have if it had arrived in time. This distrust of local officials by Federal agents who had worked shoulder-to-shoulder with the Selectmen of Jaffrey, created a sensation and showed that affairs back of the Dean murder were irregular, to put it mildly.

This friction has intensified rather than diminished so far as the "soft pedal squad" and the Selectmen are concerned, as was demonstrated by Bean in his valedictory at the local postoffice.

The Selectmen and their supporters claim that the real confederates of the "Reds" are those who are obstructing justice in the Dean case and who, they claim, endorse murder in refusing to sign the petition for a full and honest inquiry.

CHILDREN AND TEACHERS ASKED TO AID IN CENSUS

Washington, Jan. 5.—An appeal to the school children and their teachers to aid in the 1920 census was voiced by Dr. P. P. Claxton, Commissioner of Education, recently.

In his statement Dr. Claxton said: "Teachers and school officials and the children in the schools as well, can help the government with the fourteenth census of the United States, which began January 2, 1920, by making clear to all the people in the community how important the census work is.

"The enumeration of the population during a census of the United States always presents numerous difficulties—among them apprehension on the part of the people, particularly those of foreign birth or extraction, that their answers to the enumerator's questions will cause increased taxation, legal entanglements or other consequences injurious to their welfare. The schools can assist materially in quieting such unfounded fears and at the same time acquaint all persons with the main questions included in the census schedules."

HERRMANN DUE TO QUIT AS LEADER

New York, Jan. 5.—This is the week when Garry Herrmann, owner of the world's champion Reds, is scheduled to resign as chairman of the National Commission. His successor will most likely be "Big Bill" Edwards, former Princeton football player and new internal revenue collector.

For more than a year now ten of the big league magnates—seven in the National League—have been bitterly opposed to Herrmann continuing as chairman of the National Commission because of his financial interest in the Cincinnati club.

These ten-club owners believed that, for the good of the national pastime, a man not financially interested in any of the sixteen big league clubs should be appointed chairman.

SHEVLIN MEETS ALGER AT SUFFOLK A. C. TONIGHT

By RINGSIDE.

Two of the real claimants of the New England welterweight title will attract all the fight fans of Roxbury and Cambridge, not to mention Boston proper, to the Suffolk A. C. quarters this p. m. Eddie Shevlin of Roxbury and George Alger of Cambridge clash in the main bout of twelve rounds in Hibernian Hall and there's no reason to believe that it will not be a real scrap all the journey.

Neither of the boxers has any funny stuff connected with his long and busy record, and each fights all the time he's in the ring. Shevlin is at his best right now, as he showed by boxing Paul Doyle twelve rounds to a draw recently. Eddie is the bird who fought two torrid bouts with Basham, the English champion, while he was in the service.

Though the Roxbury youth lost the decisions, reports of the quarrels would lead one to believe that the decisions would have been reversed had the boxers been working here. Edward is in for a busy evening, a big incentive, however. Alger hasn't been performing much the last couple of years, but he knows all about the fight game, and is still a sterling performer.

A rigid course of training has brought back his speed and his punch, and everything, and in his tryout bout with Chick West a while back George was there with all the old artillery and speed. The winner of the bout will undoubtedly be stuck on with Doyle shortly, so both boys will have a big incentive.

HARRY CARLSON MEETS SIMLER AT LYNN

Fight fans down in Lynn get a good run for their money at the Casino A. C., where Chick Simler of Boston and Harry Carlson of Brockton go. It for twelve rounds. Simler, who engaged a comeback here last week, after spending a couple of years in service, looked just as good as he did when he first flashed in these parts, and is anxious to carve his way into a steady diet of final bouts. Carlson has met them all, and the best of his opponents have never been able to beat him up much. He should give Simler a real tryout.

Phelps Inventory Filed

An inventory of the estate of Albro Phelps of Watertown, who died August 31, has been filed. The estate is valued at $17,866.

To try to control railroad rates by arbitrarily limiting profits is to put the manager who makes his profits by efficiency and economy on the same level as the one who tries to accomplish the same result through extortionate charges.

—Hadley Railroad Securities Commission; Report to the President—1921.

THE old-time pack-bearer could carry a hundred pounds ten miles a day.

The railroad is the modern pack-bearer. For every employee it carries 2,000 times as much.

Back of each railroad worker there is a $10,000 investment in tracks and trains and terminals, with steam and electricity harnessed like a great beast of burden.

Without this mighty transportation machine the railroad worker could do no more than the old-time packer. But with it he is enabled to earn the highest railroad wages paid in the world, while the country gains the lowest-cost transportation in the world.

The modern railroad does as much work for half a cent as the pack-bearer could do for a full day's pay.

The investment of capital in transportation and other industries increases production, spreads prosperity and advances civilization.

To enlarge our railroads so that they may keep pace with the Nation's increasing production, to improve them so that freight may be hauled with less and less human effort—a constant stream of new capital needs to be attracted.

Under wise public regulation the growth of railroads will be stimulated, the country will be adequately and economically served, labor will receive its full share of the fruits of good management, and investors will be fairly rewarded.

GOWDY TO JOIN N.Y. GIANTS

Braves Backstop to Return to Club With Which He First Broke Into Big League

New York, Jan. 5.—Hank Gowdy will be seen in the uniform of the New York Giants when the Spring training season starts the latter part of next month. This statement is not in the class of the ordinary baseball rumors which begin to fly thick and fast shortly after each new year is ushered in, but comes from a man who stands very close to the blond-haired war hero of baseball, who last October rounded out of his seventh season with the Boston Braves.

Hank is not sore on Boston or the club management, but he feels he has been too long in one place and that a change of scene will do him a world of good. His preference, naturally, is for the Giants, with which organization he broke into fast company some eight years ago, and the likelihood of his transfer to New York was greatly increased when Manager McGraw entered the market for a first-class catcher some time since.

It is no secret that Mike Gonzales has proved a disappointment. The Cuban is a great catcher, mechanically, and his throwing arm was as strong as ever last season, but, despite these qualifications, the Giants' opponents frequently get the jump on him. Frank Snyder, the other backstop secured by Manager McGraw from the St. Louis Cardinals, has also failed to fill the bill, while it is doubtful if Lew McCarthy will ever again figure prominently as a member of the New York team.

Something must be done if the Giants are to be put in the race this year. When last season started the New York team looked like a certain flag-winner, but the unexpected strength developed by the Cincinnati Reds upset the dope and the Giants were forced to trail all the latter part of the year.

McGraw is also after Maranville, but it is not believed that he will succeed in landing "Rabbit." Manager Stallings of the Braves is a great admirer of his midget shortstop, and, when approached by agents of the New York club, demanded so many players in exchange, that the offers refused to consider the proposition. With Gowdy it is different. Stallings knows of Hank's desire to get away from Boston and will not stand in the batters' way of securing himself provided, of course, the New York management makes the trade worth while.

COMMONWEALTH A. C. TO STAGE DOYLE-WELSH BOUT

Much comment has been stirred up in Attic circles by the matching of Paul Doyle and Jabber Joe Welsh for the Commonwealth show on Thursday evening. Doyle was made a top-heavy favorite when the bout was announced, as Welsh has never been seen in these parts. But an investigation of his record has changed the slate, and it's down as an even thing now.

Welsh has twice bested Doyle, and only last week won a popular verdict from Patsy Cline, a tough customer. The local battler, however, is better now than he ever was before, they say, and is certain he will get even for the past when he takes on Welsh this time.

It has been rumored that the Commonwealth would stage a show Saturday, as well as Thursday.

BROOKLINE TO DINE EX-POLICE CHIEF COREY

An informal dinner to former Police Chief Alonzo T. Corey of Brookline will be given by the Board of Selectmen at the Brookline Country Club January 14. The affair is arranged primarily to show the appreciation of fellow officials of the former chief's forty years' service. Those present will include heads of departments and police and fire officials. Judge Phillip Parker, chairman of the selectmen, will preside and act as master of ceremonies.

ALL-STAR SHOW PLANNED AT COMMERCIAL A. C.

An all-star show, with plenty of sturdy contestants, has been announced as the program for the Commercial A. C. Friday evening. Matchmaker McKirdy has signed up Pat McCarthy to box George Robinson; Young Muggsy, the knockout star, to battle Sam Bell, and Johnny Hepburn to tackle Bunny O'Neill. There will also be a six-round prelim between Barney McIntee and Frankie Carey.

GOLF EVENTS WORLD NEWS NOWADAYS

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

There is no better gauge of the popular interest in an individual, a book, a play, a strike, an election or anything that transpires than by the amount of newspaper space which is devoted to it.

Thus, from a world wide to a weekend visit of a son upon his parents at the family homestead, can the interest in the particular event be ascertained. The press of the world devotes its front page to a world war for four years, and in the case of the son's visit to the paternal mansion the local newspaper devotes an inch.

The growth of the popular interest in golf can be judged in no better way than through the columns of the metropolitan newspaper engages special golf writers and the golf news of each country club is given liberal treatment in the local press.

SHOWS GROWTH OF GAME.

This newspaper analysis shows better than anything else the development of the game in England as well as America.

As late as 1888 golf had little hold in England. In that year the British open championship was held at the Musselburgh course in Scotland and an enterprising correspondent wired a London newspaper that Harry Vardon and J. H. Taylor had finished the regular rounds of the tournament all even and would play off for the title the following day.

The correspondent thought that as the contestants were Englishmen an important London daily would be eager to have an adequate report of the match, and in his wire he said he was ready to cover the play-off and telegraph to London as many words as the editor wished. The sporting editor in London replied:

"Golf is a Scotch game. No interest in it in England. Thanks for offer but do not care for story."

PUBLISHES COLUMN.

That same London daily now publishes more than a column on matches of far less importance than the play-off, which was won by Varden at Muirfield, and sends its own staff of experts to cover the championship events.

Before 1900 golf news was a rare find in an American newspaper. About this time a few dailies began devoting space to it, but it was not generally used until many years later. Since 1913 the game has been on the go in American newspapers, and it demands more space each season.

It was in September, 1912, the day following the victory of Francis Ouimet over Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, in a play-off for the open golf championship of the United States, that golf got its great real "big break" in the American press. This was the first time that a golf story broke through to page one. The victory of Ouimet over the Englishmen was used on the front pages of hundreds of papers published in the United States, and there was not a sporting page that did not devote liberal space to it.

That single story paved the way for hundreds of thousands of columns of golf news, which from that date has been finding its way into news papers of the United States.

OF WIDE INTEREST.

At the last amateur championship, held at the Oakmont Club of Pittsburgh there was gathered the greatest squad of special golf writers ever pressed into service to handle a championship. There is small wonder at this, for the managing editor of a great New York newspaper, in writing of this event, said:

"The event was important, for it interested hundreds of thousands."

Leased wires are up in news paper offices in Boston, Chicago, New York and other cities connecting directly with the Oakmont Clubhouse. One of the news gathering associations set up a loop wire from its nearest leased wire point to the clubhouse, and the result of the important matches was known from Boston to the Pacific coast within a few seconds after they were completed.

This year will bring even greater demand for golf news of local interest for local papers and of general interest for [illegible] papers.

GOLFING NOTES

"Golfers will assemble at the Exchange Club, Boston, the evening of January 15, 1920, where all will start from scratch in a competition over several 'courses.'" These reads the announcement of the annual banquet of the Massachusetts Golf Association. While the card does not contain the magic letters "B. Y. O. L." it is probable that no one would be arrested for so doing.

Starters at the banquet are limited to 200, the capacity of the room in which the food will be delivered. Dinner tickets will be awarded on the basis of "first come, first served." They may be obtained from E. S. Litchfield, No. 148 Water street; telephone Main 5500.

The committee has decided to have a minimum of speeches and a maximum of professional entertainment of a quality no golfer would want to miss. The last words are taken direct from the announcement so you can guess for yourself what sort of entertainment it is that no golfer would want to miss. The committee says that every club in the State Association will be represented.

* * *

Harry Bowler and Donald Vinton were "at home" today in their brand new golf club which occupies a number of floors in No. 16 Hawley street. This school happens to be up above a fireworks store, but Bowler and Vinton remark that the regular fireworks season is limited to July 4th, whereas they will have something doing all the time until Spring.

* * *

Abe Mitchell continues to shoot remarkable golf over on the other side. At Sonning a few days ago he scored a 69 against a par of 70. He was in 32, card reading 444-344-343-32. He dropped all his putts and had one of those rare things known as "a perfect 32."

* * *

A row is on among the members of the Turnhouse Golf Club of the Edinburgh district of Scotland over Sunday golf. Some members want it and others are against it. At a meeting held here recently conversation upon the subject was mixed. Those who argued for it pointed out that they thought upon the subject of Sunday recreation had advanced of late.

When a vote was taken eighty-six hands were up against it and forty for it. The chairman of the meeting thereupon decided that as the club had 500 members the vote was too light to indicate the real sentiment and he announced that a plebiscite of all members would be taken. Some live lobbying is now being done by each side.

VALGER TO BOX MICHAELS AT TRIPLE A

Both Benny Valger, the French flash, and Nick (Young) Michaels of Syracuse, finalists at the Armory bouts tomorrow night in Mechanics Building, are in the city today, resting up for the fray. The boys have met before and it's a grudge or two to settle. Then, too, each sees a go with the champion in the offing, and is anxious to come out in front.

The battle shapes up like a good one, as both can hit and box and never do any stalling. Michaels has made a lot of friends here in his bouts with Charley Parker, while Valger has plenty of boosters who can see nothing for him but the light-weight crown.

Managers from various parts of the country have been trying to tie the pair up for a return bout, but it remained for the Triple A. to put it over.

Michaels in his former bouts here has shown better as a fighter after being strung, and as Valger is a fast speedy worker the fans can look for some real fireworks before the battle is many seconds old.

The semi-final between Tommy O'Brien, the former coast star, and Tommy Regan of East Boston is attracting almost as much interest as the main go.

A defeat for either boy means back to the preliminary ranks, which means some real hard mulling.

Two good preliminaries will open the show.

All told the card is one of the best ever arranged for the Boston fans.

United States Golf Association Meets Next Friday

This week Friday the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association will be held in New York. Officers of the Massachusetts Golf Association and representatives of a number of the active clubs will attend. The gathering will be the most important ever held by the association, as it will outline the campaign for 1920, which promises to surpass any yet recorded in American golf.

OUIMET-EVANS MATCH BEST OF 1919

By WALTER C. HAGEN.

Open Golf Champion.

Instead of looking back on what happened in the tournament last season we must now look forward to what is going to happen this new year. One thing is certain, it will be the biggest year in the history of the royal and ancient pastime, both as to the amount of golf played and in the importance of tournaments. Our open championship will be an international affair this year and the British open will be international too as at the present time several pros have announced that they will go over.

Some of the English amateurs may play in our amateur championship and several Americans may try to lift the British title, a feat that has not been accomplished since Walter J. Travis turned the trick sixteen years ago. Our best woman golfer, Miss Alexa Stirling, will play in the Women's Championship on the other side of the water.

All this will stimulate competition on both sides of the Atlantic and many come and years may go, but as far as competitive golf is concerned I never expect to see a match that will equal or even approach the one between Francis Ouimet and Chick Evans at Pittsburgh in the national amateur championship last August. It was the one big match of the season, and it was not alone interesting to the gallery who saw it but to golfers all over the country as well.

TENNIS ASS'N NOMINATES OFFICERS

Nominations for officers of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, to be voted on at the annual meeting in New York on February 6, are contained in the call for the meeting being sent to the member clubs by Edwin F. Torrey, secretary.

The nominating committee included Richard Bishop of Boston, Charles S. Landers of New York and Walter T. Hayes of Chicago, and its recommendations follow: President, Julian S. Myrick of New York; vice-president, Edwin F. Torrey of Clinton; secretary, George W. Wightman of Boston; treasurer, Alfred H. Chapin of Springfield.

Members of the executive committee also to be elected at the annual meeting are named as follows: Sectional delegates serving until 1922: Southwestern Section, J. R. Adams, Jr., of Dallas, Texas; Tri-State, William H. Hoppie of Cincinnati; New England, Edwin Shaefe of Boston. The Northwestern Section has named Ward C. Burton of Minneapolis as its delegate, and the California Section has named Dr. Sumner Hards of San Francisco.

Nominations for the office of delegate-at-large are Charles Garland of Pittsburgh, Pa.; C. Drummond Jones of St. Louis and J. D. E. Jones of Providence, R. I. Former presidents to be elected members of the committee are: Harry W. Slocum, Robert D. Wrenn and George T. Adee, all of New York; J. C. Stewart of Chicago and W. P. Rowland of Philadelphia.

BILLIARDS' BEST VISIT BOSTON THIS WEEK

Billiards' best will be in Boston this week and part of next.

Three champion cueists will entertain for six days.

Three headliners will be assigned to oppose the champions.

William F. Hoppe vs. Charles Peterson, at balkline, on Wednesday and Thursday; Robert Cannefax vs. Charles McCourt, at three cushions on Friday and Saturday, and on Monday and Tuesday of next week Ralph Greenleaf vs. Jerome Keogh, at pocket billiards, in the schedule.

Exhibitions will be played afternoon and evening at Littlefield's billiard parlors, No. 94 Washington street. Afternoon games start at 3 o'clock, and the evening matches at 8:15 o'clock.

Hoppe, Cannefax and Greenleaf, the respective balkline, three cushion and pocket billiard champions, represent the best these styles of game ever produced. They went through the strongest fields that ever contested for a title. Only one game was lost by the winners. Hoppe and Greenleaf came through without suffering a setback, while Cannefax's lone reverse was at the hands of McCourt.

The champions will face worthy opposition. Peterson, who has been assigned a man's-size job in facing Hoppe day after day, has the class to make the champion work. Peterson's specialty, however, is his exhibition of fancy shots. He is champion in this department.

Greenleaf is the one person who should keep pocket billiards in front. Without Hoppe, balkline never would enjoy its present popularity. Personality is just as essential as ability. Hoppe combined both.

BIG ZBYSZKO DUE TO REACH U. S. THIS MONTH

The big Pole who pinned the best wrestlers in the United States and Europe a few years ago has engaged passage on the Oscar II. and will leave Copenhagen on January 8. He has been assured a match in New York city for the first week in February, but no opponent has been picked as yet.

Three Preliminaries to Caddock-Burns Mat Bout

Three fast preliminaries to the Caddock - Burns championship wrestling bout will be staged at the Mechanics Building Wednesday night. Patsy McCarthy will get another crack at John Kilonis in the second, while Charley Pietro, the Albanian, will grapple an opponent yet to be selected in the third event.

REPUBLICANS DEFEAT DEMOCRATIC GOLFERS

By Universal Service.

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 5.—One of the closest golf matches ever played here came to an end when Elihu Root, Jr., and Supreme Court Judge Edward R. Finch of New York, both Republicans, defeated Judges John M. Tierney and Richard F. Lydon, Democrats, also of New York, by a margin of two holes after seven days of strenuous play. The victorious Republican pair selected trophies to their liking and assessed the damages and costs of the action against their vanquished opponents.

BEGIN FIGHT AGAINST MARYLAND RACES

Baltimore, Jan. 5.—With the opening of the biennial session of the Maryland Legislature comes the fight of ministerial and other anti-racetrack associations against resumption of racing in Maryland. With enormous losses in Baltimore caused by prohibition, city revenues fall behind expenses and Democratic leaders are planning to have racing for the State with a $10,000 daily tax to help make deficits.

HAGEN TO PLAY GOLF IN ENGLAND NEXT SUMMER

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 5.—Jack Jolly, the well-known golf professional, stated here today that Walter Hagen is going across the water as soon as the north and south tournament is over and will play in England and Scotland during the Summer. It is also hinted that Jim Barnes is going across with Hagen.

CRIMSON HEROES DUE IN BOSTON TOMORROW

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Chillicothe, Ills., Jan. 2.—The conquering Crimson, at this writing, is rapidly approaching Chicago, the first break in the 4,000-mile return trip to Boston.

Thus far the trip has been unmarked by unusual events. The purchasing of relics and souvenirs from Indian merchants at the several brief stops in Arizona, New Mexico and Kansas, card paying, preparing for mid-year examinations, and the occasional staging of a barber shop opera serve to fill in the dullness of the long journey.

A telegram was received by Captain Murray from F. L. Campbell, president of the University of Oregon and a graduate of Harvard in the class of 1886, congratulating the Harvard leader and concluded with the remark that "Next to Oregon, Harvard held his greatest affection."

"Bubbles" Havemeyer and "Duke" Sedgwick, centre and tackle of the Crimson varsity, will leave the party at Chicago and return homeward via New York City on the Twentieth Century Limited. The remaining members of the Harvard squad with the coaches and newspaper men will leave Chicago late today and are due to arrive in Boston tomorrow night.

The Harvard cripples are fast rounding into shape. Several still show the scars of battle, but Ralph Horween, the most painfully injured of the lot, has removed the sling from his arm, and expects that within the next day or two the dislocated shoulder will be working as well as ever. The Horween brothers will avail themselves of the opportunity of visiting their home while the team is in Chicago. The lateness of their train on the Westward-bound trip prevented such a visit and as both re-entered Harvard from the service they will see their home for the first time in nearly two years.

B. A. A. SEEKING TO PUT STRONG TEAM ON ICE

With the rules of the Olympic stipulating that athletes must be representatives of bona-fide amateur clubs, which precludes the chances of gathering an all-star team from the Boston hockey leagues, the B. A. A. will endeavor to put a team on the ice this Winter that will conform with that rule and which it hopes will be a capable Boston representative.

Toward this end Manager George V. Brown of the Unicorn team has gathered data against resumption of the qualities of first-class hockey. It will be necessary for the New England Hockey Association to pass on the standing of all men, but Manager Brown feels that a team with a few of the old guard will pass muster.

YELLE VS. BOYLE IN MARLBORO BATTLE

Jackie Williams, manager of Phinney Boyle, announces that the boxer has contracted to box Freddie Yelle in the main bout at the Marlboro Driving Club Friday night. Phinney recently scored a decision over Sailor Joe Gibbs, and is in training to give the latter a return match very shortly.

THE CINEMA MURDER

A Thrilling Mystery Film Serial of Love and Poverty With the Scene Laid in London and New York

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

"The Cinema Murder" in motion pictures, with Miss Marion Davies as the charming heroine, a Cosmopolitan production, will soon be shown at all leading theatres. Screened under direction of George D. Baker. Presented by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as a Paramount-Artcraft Picture.

How the Story Starts

Phillip Romilly, a poor London art teacher, calls on the girl he is engaged to at his old home, Detton Magna, and she tells him she is tired of waiting for him to get enough money to marry on, and has promised to wed Douglas. He notes that her house is better furnished than when he saw it last. She taunts him with his poverty and he leaves the house, walking towards a canal nearby. He goes to a Liverpool hotel and represents himself as Douglas Romilly. He takes passage for America. He meets Elizabeth Dalstan, the pretty young movie actress, at his table on board ship. From a story told by Raymond Greene, a movie magnate, he gets the idea he is suspected of being involved in a crime committed in the canal.

"YOU know," she asked, her voice still very low, "why I left the saloon a little abruptly this evening?"

"Why?" he demanded.

"Because," she went on, "I could see the effect which Mr. Raymond Greene's story had upon you; because I, also, was in that train, and I have better eyesight than Mr. Greene. You were one of the two men who were walking along the towpath."

"Well?" he muttered.

"You have nothing to tell me?"

"Nothing!"

She waited for a moment.

"At least you have not attempted to persuade me that you lingered underneath that bridge to escape from the rain," she remarked.

"If I cannot tell you the truth," he promised, "I am not going to tell you a lie, but apart from that I admit nothing. I do not even admit that it was I whom you saw."

Touch of Fingers

She laid her hand upon his. The touch of her fingers was wonderful, cool and soft and gentle. It was reassuring. He felt a sense of relaxation, felt the strain of living suddenly grow less.

"You know," she said, "all my friends tell me that I am a restful person. You are living at high pressure, are you not? Try and forget it. Fate makes queer uses of all of us sometimes. I, for one, seek her noblest sons down into the shadows and pitchforks her outcasts into the high places of life. Those do best who learn to control themselves, to live and think for the best."

"Go on talking to me," he begged.

"It is your voice, I wonder, that is so soothing, or just what you say?"

She smiled reassuringly.

"You are glad because you have found a friend," she told him, "and a friend who, even if she does not understand, does not wish to understand. Do you see?"

"I wish I felt that I deserved it," he groaned.

She laughed almost gaily.

"What a sorting up there would be of our places in life," she declared, "if we all had just what we deserved! . . . Now give me your arm. I want to walk a little. While we walk, if you like, I will try to tell you what I can about New York. It may interest you."

They walked up and down the deck, and by degrees their conversation drifted into a discussion of such recent plays as were familiar to both of them. At the far end of the ship she clung to him once or twice as the wind came booming over the freshening waves. She weighed and measured his criticisms of the plays they spoke of, and in the main approved of them.

When at last she stopped outside the companionway and bade him good night, the deck was almost deserted. They were near one of the electric lights, and he saw her face more distinctly than he had seen it at all, realized more adequately its wonderful charm. The large, firm mouth, womanly and tender though it was, was almost the mouth of a protector. She smiled at him as one might smile at a boy.

"You are to sleep well," she said firmly. "Those are my orders. Good night!"

She gave him her hand—a woman's soft and delicate fingers, yet clasping his with an almost virile strength and friendliness. She left him with that feeling about her—that she was expansive, in her heart, her sympathies, even her brain and peculiar gifts of apprehension. She left him, too, with a curious sense of restfulness, as though something he had become metamorphosed into the woman and had found a sorely-needed guardian. He abandoned without a second thought his intention of going to the smoking room and sitting up late. The thought of his empty stateroom, a horror to him a few hours ago, seemed suddenly almost alluring, and he made his way there cheerfully. He felt the sleep already upon his eyes.

CHAPTER VI.

ALL the physical exhilaration of his unlived youth seemed to be dancing in Phillip Romilly's veins when he awoke the next morning to find an open porthole, the blue sea tossing away to infinity, and his steward's cheerful face at his bedside.

"Bathroom steward says if you are ready, sir, he can arrange for your bath now," the man announced.

Phillp sprang out of bed and reached for his Bond Street dressing gown.

"Tell him I'll bring you a cup of tea when you get back, sir," the steward continued. "The bathrooms are exactly opposite."

The sting of the salt water seemed to complete his new-found lightheartedness. Phillp dressed and shaved, whistling softly all the time to himself. He even found a queer sort of interest in examining his stock of ties and socks. Something The memory of Elizabeth Dalstan's words was still in his brain. They had become the text of his life. This, he told himself, was his birthday. He even accepted without a tremor a letter and telegram which the steward brought him.

"These were in the rack for you, sir," he said. "I meant to bring them down last night, but we had a busy start."

Phillp took them up on deck to read. He tore open the telegram first and permitted himself a little start when he saw the signature. It was sent off from Detton Magna,—

"Why did you not come as promised? What am I to do?

"BEATRICE."

The envelope of the letter he opened with a little more compunction. It was written on the printed notepaper of the Douglas Romilly Shoe Company, and was of no great length.—

Dear Mr. Romilly:

I understand that you would return to the factory this evening for a few minutes, before taking the train to Liverpool. Those were one or two matters upon which I should like some further information, but as time is short I am writing to you at the Waldorf Hotel at New York.

I see that the acceptances due next 4th are unusually heavy, but I think I understood you to say that you had spoken to Mr. Henshaw at the bank concerning these, and in any case I presume there would be no difficulty.

Wishing you every success on the other side, and a safe return, I am,

Your obedient servant,

J. L. POTTS.

"There is not the slightest doubt," Phillp said to himself, as he tore both communications into pieces and watched them flutter away downwards, "that I am on my way to New York. If only one knew what had become of that poor, half-starved art master!"

He went down to breakfast and afterwards strolled aimlessly about the deck. His sense of enjoyment was so extraordinarily keen that he found it hard to settle down to any of the usual light occupations of idle travelers. He was content to stand by the rail and gaze across the sea, a new wonder to him; or to lie about in his steamer chair and listen, with half-closed eyes, to the hissing of the spray and the faint music of the wind.

His mind turned by chance to one of those stories of which he had spoken. A sudden new vigor of thought seemed to rend it inside out almost in those first few seconds. He thought of the garret in which it had been written, the wretched surroundings, the odoriferous food, the thick crockery, the smoke-palled vista of roofs and chimneys. The genius of a Stevenson would have become dwarfed in such surroundings. A phrase, a happy idea, suddenly caught his fancy. He itched for a pencil and paper. Then he looked up to find the one thing wanting. Elizabeth Dalstan, followed by a maid carrying rugs and cushions, had paused, smiling, by his side.

As a Woman Thinketh

By HELEN ROWLAND

Heaven—A Dream of Heart's Desire

Copyright, 1919, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

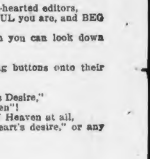
THE other day

I heard a preacher trying to describe Heaven.

And, of course, it was his own particular "Heaven"—not yours or mine.

Because EVERYBODY has a personal and individual Heaven, different from all other people's "Heavens."

To the Indian, Heaven is a "Happy Hunting Ground"—



And to the doctor it is a place of eternal rest, where his dreams will never be broken by the ringing of the telephone bell.

The bon vivant en visions it as a land of plenty, where he can eat and drink all he likes without getting a headache.

And the bachelor has a place where he can make love to all the women he likes without getting entangled—or married.

To the small boy it is a sort of etherized lollipop shop—an eternal Christmas Day.

And to the T. B. M. it is a place where all the nights are Saturday nights, and all the mornings Sunday mornings—on the golf links.

The housekeeper thinks of it as a place where buttons never come off and socks never wear out, and there are no servant problems;

And the debutante pictures it as a mixture of moonlight and jazz—

A paradise, where every girl possesses a hundred dancing frocks, and wears a three-caret engagement ring.

And where there are millions of nice, kind, soft-hearted editors, Who come around and tell you how WONDERFUL you are, and BEG you "not to work too hard,"

And where there is a peephole, through which you can look down into the "other place,"

And watch all the confirmed bachelors

Eternally darning their own socks, and nailing buttons onto their clothes with a tack hammer,

And where—but THAT'S enough!

After all, Heaven is just a vision of the "Heart's Desire,"

And you can always judge a man by his "Heaven"!

And if you find one who doesn't believe in ANY Heaven at all,

It's a sign that he hasn't any soul, or any "heart's desire," or any imagination.

Or any vision!

And I feel sorry for him!

Don't YOU?

The Valley of the Giants

By Peter B. Kyne

BUT for the arm that upheld him, Rondeau would have fallen. To have him fall, however, was not part of Bryce's plan. Jerking the fellow toward him, he passed his arm around the latter's head as in a vise with the crook of his elbow. And then the battering started. When it finished, Bryce let his man go, and Rondeau, bloody, nobbled, and semi-unconscious, sprawled on the ground.

Bryce bent over him. "Now, damn you," he roared, "who felled that tree in Cardigan's Redwoods?"

"I did M'lieur. Enough—I confess." The words were a whisper.

"Did Colonel Pennington suggest it to you?"

"He want ze burl. By gar, I do not want to die all at once."

"That's all I want to know." Stooping, Bryce seized Rondeau my the nape of the neck and the slack of his overalls, lifted him shoulder-high and threw him, as one throws a sack of meal, full at Colonel Pennington.

"You threw me at him. Now I throw him at you. You damned, thieving greedy, hypocritical scoundrel. If it were not for your years and your gray hair, I'd kill you."

The helpless hulk of the woodshorn descending upon the Colonel's expansive chest and sent him crashing earthward. Then Bryce, warmed, turned to face the ring of Laguna Grande employes about him.

Gazed Fiercely

"Next!" he roared. "Singly, in pairs, or the whole damned pack!"

"Mr. Cardigan!"

He turned. Colonel Pennington's breath had been knocked out of his body by the impact of his semi-conscious woodsman, and he lay inert, gasping like a flooked fish. Beside him Shirley Sumner was kneeling, her hands clasping her uncle's, but with her violet eyes blazing fiercely on Bryce Cardigan.

"How dare you!" she cried. "You coward! To hurt my uncle!"

He gazed at her a moment, fiercely defiantly, his chest rising and falling from his recent exertions, his knotted fists gory with the blood of his enemy. Then the light of battle died and he hung his head.

"I'm sorry," he murmured, "not for his sake, but yours. I didn't know you were here. I forgot—myself."

"I'll never speak to you again as long as I live," she burst out passionately.

He advanced a step and stood gazing down upon her. Her angry glance met his unflinchingly; and presently for him the light went out of the world.

"Very well," he murmured. "Good-by." And with bowed head he turned and made off through the green timber toward his own logging-camp five miles distant.

CHAPTER XVI.

WITH the descent upon his breast of the limp body of his big woods-bully, Cardigan's reputation had been struck to earth as effectively as if a fair-sized tree had fallen on him. Indeed, with such forces did his ponderous head collide with terra firma that had it not been for the soft cushion of ferns and tiny redwood twigs, his neck must have been broken by the shock. To complete his withdrawal from active service, the last whiff of breath had been driven from his lungs; and for the space of a minute, during which Jules' Rondeau lay heavily across his midriff, the Colonel was quite unable to get it back. Pale, gasping, and jarred from soul to suspenders, he was merely aware that something unexpected and disconcerting had occurred.

While the Colonel fought for his breath, his woodsmen remained in the offing, paralyzed into inactivity by reason of the swiftness and thoroughness of Bryce Cardigan's work; then Shirley motioned to them to remove the wreckage, and they hastened to obey.

Freed from the weight on the geometric centre of his being, Colonel Pennington stretched his legs, rolled his head from side to side, and snorted violently several times like a buck. After the sixth snort he felt so much better that a clear understanding of the exact nature of the catastrophe came to him; he struggled and sat up, looking around a little wildly.

"Where—did—Cardigan—go," he gasped.

One of his men pointed to the timber into which the enemy had just disappeared.

"Surround him—take him," Pennington ordered. "I'll give—a month's pay—to each of—the six men that bring—that scoundrel to me. Get him—quickly! Understand?"

Not a man moved. Pennington shook with fury. "Get him," he croaked. "There are enough ow you to do—the job. Close in on him—everybody. I'll give a month's pay to—everybody."

A man of that indiscriminate mixture of Spaniard and Indian known in California as cholo swept the circle of men with an alert and knowing glance. His name was Flavio Artesan, but his straight black hair, dark russet complexion, beady eyes, and hawk nose gave him such a resemblance to a fowl that he was known among his fellows as the Black Minorca, regardless of the fact that this nobriquet was scarcely fair to a very excellent breed of chicken. "That offer's good enough for me," he remarked in businesslike tones. "Come on—everybody. A month's pay for five minutes' work. I wouldn't tackle the job with six men, but there are twenty of us here."

"Hurry," the Colonel urged them.

Shirley Sumner's flashing glance rested upon the Black Minorca. "Don't you dare!" she cried, "Twenty to one! For shame!"

"For a month's pay," he replied impudently, and grinned evilly. "And I'm takin' orders from my boss." He started on a dog trot for the timber, and a dozen men trailed after him.

The Two Voices

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

"AND he speaks of the injury being to the upper part of the face," Mrs. Courtney observed. "Did he suggest there would be any disfigurement?"

"No."

"I am sure I hope not. He is so handsome. I think he and Doris are as good-looking a pair as I ever saw. I shall not mention to her that he may be disfigured."

It is hardly worth while to put such an idea into her head," Ruth agreed. "But if she loves Hugh, that would make no difference."

"I suppose not—in a way. Yet it always seems to me that a facial disfigurement is especially horrible. Do you remember that Mr. Slater, who used to go to our church? You remember how one side of his face was all twisted out of shape by a burn—"

Ruth Objects

"Please, mother!" the daughter exclaimed so sharply that her parent gazed at her reproachfully.

"Why dwell on such things? They are bad enough for the sufferer himself without other people discussing them!"

"Ruth, you are very brusque in your speech, my dear," Mrs. Courtney reproved.

"Your manner is not as gentle as I could wish. You hurt me much oftener than Doris does. However, we will let that pass now. I suppose you spoke without thinking.

"To go back to the subject of Hugh. I am sorry on my dear girl's account, as well as on his, that the poor lad is in such a nervous state. She must, of course, be with him a great deal, as his father suggests. But I dread the effect on her. She cannot stand what a more practical person can, you know. Sorry as I am for Hugh, my first thought, of course, is of Doris. She is so sensitive that to be often with a nervous—perhaps fretful—person will be a great strain on her."

Ruth arose. "Will you tell her of Mr. Rodney's letter when she comes in?" she said. "It is hardly worth while for me to go over it all again."

Then she went on downstairs, leaving her mother alone.

CHAPTER XII.

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

WHEN Doris returned from her shopping tour, Mrs. Courtney told her, as nearly as she could remember, what Daniel Rodney had written of his son's condition.

Remembering Ruth's strenuous warning, she did not suggest that Hugh would be disfigured. She did, however, explain that he must wear a bandage over the upper part of his face for a while.

"Oh, poor dear!" Doris exclaimed. "Yet he will look as if he had done some heroic thing—or something, won't he?"

Her mother smiled affectionately. "Trust you for seeing something lovely in everything, dear child," she approved. "You will, of course, have to be with him a good deal."

"Yes, but I am sure he will be all, right soon. I know from what Laura tells Ruth that Hugh needs no more than anything. I am going to write him a little note telling him I shall be with him every day after he gets home."

The vision of her handsome lover with a white bandage across his good-looking eyes moved the girl to pity. She saw herself as a ministering angel, reading to him, waiting on him, and changing his temporary darkness into daylight.

"The other letters I have sent have been only the kind that his nurse could read aloud to him," she continued. "This one I shall inclose to his father—and ask him to read it to Hugh. Mr. Rodney will not mind the affectionateness of it, I guess."

For the Father's Eyes

When she had written the note she brought it to her mother.

"See if you think it is all right," she demanded. "Since Mr. Rodney is to censor it, I want to be sure it's quite the thing."

The mother read it, a smile of approval on her gentle face.

"Dear Boy," the letter ran, "(As you cannot read this yourself I am not writing all I want to, but you must fancy my calling you the name you most like me to call you.) This is just a little note to tell you that I am wonderfully happy because you are coming home soon, and that my heart aches for you when I think of all you have been through.

"From what your father writes to Laura I suppose you will not be allowed to use your eyes much for a few weeks. But I am going to be eyes for you, dear, and will spend a part of every day reading to you—unless you would rather have me talk to you.

"I am putting something in the corner of this letter, just where I sign my name. Put your lips to it and see if you can guess what it is.

"YOUR DORIS.

"P. S. — If you could read this yourself, there is a lot more I would say."

"That is a sweet little letter, darling," Mrs. Courtney cooed. "Now write a note to Mr. Rodney to accompany it."

While her daughter did her bidding, the mother's sentimental fancies traveled forward to the return of the sick man.

She recalled what her father had said of his being "nervous." While she pitied him, she dreaded the effect of his condition upon her querulous and exacting. It would be most disagreeable.

How to Keep Baby Smiling and Well

See that the daily functions are regular and normal

YOU can't expect the little ones to be happy and playful when the head feels dull and the stomach blotted. The normal habit of children is to be happy and when you notice them cross and fretful you will usually find constipation is responsible.

Perhaps they have missed that daily function so necessary to comfort and health. Look at the tongue and see if the breath is bad. Watch for belching. These are the tell-tale symptoms of constipation. Tonight give a little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which you can buy at any drug store, and it will act in the morning and the troublesome symptoms promptly disappear.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. Unlike the harsher physics it acts gently and without griping so that while grownups can use it freely it can also be given to a tiny baby with perfect safety. Thousands of American families would not think of being without a bottle in the house for the emergency arises almost daily when it is needed.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, they being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

Child Almost Dead Grandmother Saves Life

Roxbury, Mass. A grandmother in Roxbury writes: "I put great faith in your medicine, as one of my children was dying. The doctor said she could not live until morning. I sent word to the drug store, got a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir, was so excited I gave her the half of a teaspoon of it, and at night I gave her the other half. I thought it would kill or relieve. When the doctor says she is going anyway, but she did not die. She went to sleep, the first sleep for a week, and the next morning she passed two worms. Then she got all the better. The doctor came to see if she was dead, but he ran not pretty quick, for she was sitting in her chair eating a bowl of oatmeal and milk. That was twenty-four years ago, and now she is a baby girl of her own, seven months old, who is also using Dr. True's Elixir." (Name on request.)

U. S. RUBBER IS FEATURE FOR STRENGTH

Sells at Record Highest Price in Active and Declining Market

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon and while above their lowest morning level had failed to show any strength on the whole after initial business. U. S. Rubber was an exception, selling at a highest record price in a declining market. After receding more than a point to 137⅞, it advanced to 141½. Trading was of magnitude during the forenoon, first hour transactions totalling about 436,000 shares. The recessional movement was largely due to high money. Contrary to hopes of a rate, call money renewed at 10 per cent. The foreign exchange market was dull at the start and without appreciative alternation in quotations.

PRICES RECEDED SOON.

At the opening prices advanced in the instance of a majority of the active stocks, but the improvement was slight and short lived. The list was irregular within fifteen minutes and the market was weak in about half an hour. Recessions were the rule at mid-morning. Weakest issues were American Woolen common, Baldwin, Crucible, Republic Steel, General Motors, International Paper, Mexican Petroleum, Pan American and Stromberg. They declined from two to five points in the first hour. American Woolen was affected by the report that some of its employes had been ordered to quit work as a protest against the deportation of "Reds." Oils were depressed by earthquake reports from Mexico.

MONEY MORE PLENTIFUL.

The drop of the call rate to 6 per cent. on Friday was in anticipation of a favorable bank statement and to the arrival of Western funds for New York loans. The bank statement verified hopes, showing reserves had increased $64,000,000 in a week. The weekly statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York was not so favorable. The gain in total reserve was but $4,000,000, although gold increased $5,000,000. The reserve ratio was at the record low of 38.7 per cent., compared with 40 per cent. for the previous week. Increases shown by the statement included bills discounted and bought $41,000,000, commercial discounts $36,000,000, and bills bought in open market $17,000,000. The surplus account increased to $45,081,932 and amounts due members increased $70,000,000.

COPPERS STARTED STRONG.

Coppers had a strong start, but weakened with other issues. Dividends distributed by copper mining companies in 1919 totalled $69,000,000 compared with $131,000,000 disbursed in 1918 and $179,000,000 in 1917. Radical curtailment of consumption of the red metal is the reason for the diminution of producers' profits. There was some demand for copper issues from the outside at the opening. In fact over Sunday orders were what gave the list in general its upward impetus at the outset.

BUSINESS IS ACTIVE.

That trade is very active is indicated by the amount of New York Clearing House exchanges recently. On Saturday they amounted to $1,348,958,054, the high record for a last day of the week. Friday's clearings totalled $1,385,807,181, also a high record. These unprecedented figures are incidental to first of the year financiering.

High records for clearings which were broken on Friday and Saturday last were $1,354,614,956 on December 16, $1,281,847,617, on December 3 and $1,330,816,314 on November 5.

New York Sub-Treasury Loss

New York, Jan. 5.—The sub-treasury lost $373,000 to the banks on Saturday, reducing the cash net gain since Friday to $1,269,000.

Carson Hill Still Climbing; Oils Are Leaders on the Curb

Stocks were strong on the Boston Stock Exchange at the opening, but the reaction in New York was duplicated here to some extent. At the end of half an hour the market was irregular. The trend continued downward and it verged on weakness in the second hour. Carson Hill sold at a new highest record during the forenoon. Wolverine was active for that issue and advanced more than a point. American Sugar preferred also went up a point. Most gains were fractional and were made by Mohawk, Ventura, Swift & Co, Mexican Investment, New Cornelia, Davis Daly and North Butte.

Among weakest issues to recede a point or more were Calumet & Arizona, U. S. Smelting, United Fruit and Swift International. Stocks to decline fractionally included Eastern Manufacturing, National Leather, Copper Range, Isle Royale, Mayflower-Old Colony, United Shoe, Waldorf, Root & Van Dervoorts and St. Mary's Land. Mullins Body recovered part of a point loss. Its directors declared a quarterly dividend of $1 on common stock, payable February 1, to stock of record January 15. This increases the dividend rate from $3 to $4 per annum and follows an initial quarterly payment of 75 cents on November 1.

NEW CERTIFICATES LISTED.

The Boston Stock Exchange has listed temporary certificates for 249,968 shares of International Cement Corporation, without par value. Permission is given to add 116,889 shares as same is issued in exchange for Cuban Portland Cement stock and International Portland Cement common and preferred stock, and 33,133 additional shares as may be issued for the conversion of Cuban Portland Cement 7 per cent. notes, making the total amount authorized to be listed 400,000 shares.

The Boston Stock Exchange has listed temporary certificates for Boston & Maine Railroad preferred stocks as follows: 188,600 shares series A first preferred; 76,488 shares series B first preferred; 79,171 shares series C first preferred; 43,270 shares series D first preferred; 650 shares series E first preferred; 81,498 shares preferred.

The committee on securities rules that sellers of pre-existing bonds of the Boston & Maine Railroad and bonds of the seven directly leased lines must indicate whether said bonds are "stamped" or "unstamped." The "stamped" bonds are endorsed by the Old Colony Trust Company on presentation by holders assenting to the provisions of the indenture between the holders and the trustees.

CURB MARKET ACTIVE.

The Curb market had an active morning and prices were well maintained, but there was no particular feature to forenoon trading. Stocks to advance at the opening included Gilliland, White Oil, Hendee, Chief, First National, Black Hawk, Imperial, Pilgrim and Texana. Among those to weaken at the start were Simms Petroleum, Tillotson, Oklahoma and Boston, Pioneer and United Verde Extension. The last named issue sold ex-dividend.

At the end of an hour Gilliland was up 1⅛ and White Oil 1. Mutual Divide, which began unchanged, was off ½. Oils obtained the most attention from traders.

Growing Demand for Oil

In their comment on the market, Jones & Baker say: "Latest figures available show that oil consumption continues to outstrip production. In October an average of 1,078,808 barrels of oil daily was produced. The average daily consumption on the other hand was 1,128,677 barrels. The latter in turn represents an increase of 2.6 per cent. over the September consumption. With consumption steadily outstripping production and with rising crude oil prices established oil companies apparently are facing an era of mounting prosperity."

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Jan. 5.—Stimulated by strength in Liverpool, the local cotton market opened firm today. First prices were 30 to 50 points higher. Liverpool and commission houses figured largely as buyers. Offerings came chiefly from the South. At the end of fifteen minutes the local list was strong at a net gain of about 60 points. Opening prices were: January, 38.60; February, 37.20 bid; March, 37.00; May, 35.50; July, 33.65; September, 31.15; October, 30.60; December, 30.15.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Corn opened ⅝c to 1¼c higher. Oats were ¼c to ⅝c higher. Provisions opened higher. Opening prices were: Corn—May, 1.32⅝; July, 1.31½. Oats—May, 83⅝; July, 76⅝. Lard—May, 24.75.

STAR DISLIKES HERSELF IN MOVIES

By FRED J. McISAAC, Dramatic Editor.

Violet Heming, the actress, is playing in "Three Faces East" at the Tremont. Violet Heming, the movie star, is playing in "Everywoman" at the Park. This sounds like an advertisement, a couple of advertisements, but it is a necessary introduction to an interesting fact.

Violet Heming, the actress, hasn't been around to see herself on the films. She went once to a private showing, and she didn't think much of herself. So she refuses to go and look at that Heming creature in the movies at all.

MOVIES VS. STAGE.

What Violet, the movie queen, thinks of Violet, the actress, hasn't been reported, but she probably would have a few remarks to make if she could get a squint at the blonde person wearing her name at the Tremont.

All this startling information is the result of a perfectly innocent question I asked Miss Heming when I called on her in her dressing room at the Tremont.

The dressing room was distinguished, aside from the presence of Miss Heming, by a brilliant and inviting Christmas tree occupying about half the room and a ferocious looking bulldog occupying most of the remainder. Miss Heming herself is slight and doesn't require much room, and neither do I.

"I suppose you go down and watch yourself every afternoon disporting on the screen," I suggested for want of something better.

"Well, no, I don't. I haven't seen the picture since it came to Boston. You see, I don't like myself very much on the screen. I suppose we all of us think we are better looking than we actually are, and I was a bit disappointed that I didn't look better. Doesn't that sound conceited?"

"Yes," I replied. "But you have a right to think you ought to show up pretty nice."

A DAZZLING BLONDE.

You see, Miss Heming was wearing that dainty evening gown which she puts on for the last scene in "Three Faces East" after it has been proved that she isn't a German spy at all, but a true hearted daughter of John W. Bull. Did I mention she is a blonde? One of those beautifully colored British blondes of the type that made the London Gaiety Theatre famous. Well she is.

"They say the camera never lies," said Miss Heming. "It does. Lots of ways. It distorts, magnifies the wrong thing, gets you out of focus and takes the color out of you, making you a creature of black and white. But it is an interesting art, nevertheless. I enjoyed making my picture and learned a lot of things I didn't know.

"But I would never give up the stage for the screen. I love playing to people and making pictures is just drudgery, well paid of course, but drudgery.

"The sort of thing I would like to do would be to play a number of parts in a season. The old fashioned repertory in which the bill was changed every night was undoubtedly very hard work but it must have been stimulating.

LIKES VARIETY OF PARTS.

"From a financial point of view I have been fortunate in playing two or three seasons in a single role, but it gets to be very monotonous. And on the modern stage if you ever happen to make an impression in a certain sort of part you can't escape such parts all your life. It's four or five years now since I have been playing spies, or at least adventurous females. I got into a farce for a few months last year and I assure you it was a tremendous relief. Yet here I am again in the secret service.

"The war is over, of course, and war plays will soon disappear, but we have the Bolsheviki with us and I am very much afraid I will find myself cast to play a Russian spy, or a lady anarchist or something of that description next season. But I don't think I will accept any more spy or detective parts. I am going to try something else."

Crop Small But Value High

Although the 1919 cotton crop was the smallest produced in this country for a decade or more it exceeded in value the production of any previous year. The Department of Agriculture values the 11,030,000 bales obtained from the latest crop at $1,977,073,000. The 1918 crop was almost 700,000 bales larger but was valued at $1,663,633,000 only.

MISS VIOLET HEMING, who is playing in Boston in both the movies and a stage play.

AN AMERICAN MAY GOVERN TURKEY

By International News Service.

Paris, Jan. 5.—The creation of an international commission to govern Constantinople and the Dardanelles, with an American as president, is the latest suggestion on the eve of the conference of Premier Lloyd George, Premier Clemenceau, Premier Nitti, and Premier Venizelos.

Not only will a supreme effort be made this week to solve the perplexing Turkish problems, but an attempt will be made to reach a compromise on Fiume at the same time.

Dispatches from Rome say that newspapers close to the government are preparing the public mind to accept a rejection of Gabriele d'Annunzio's cherished dream and to receive a compromise agreeable to President Wilson.

While some details regarding the partition of Turkey into spheres of influence already have been worked out, the recent conference in London failed to settle the fate of the former Turkish empire. The inability to reach a complete agreement is said to have resulted from the opposition of M. Berthelot of the French foreign office, to some of the suggestions of Lloyd George.

Premier Venizelos has held several conferences with French officials regarding Greece's Turkish claims. He is ready to urge a Greek mandate for Constantinople, on the ground that a large part of the population is Greek. However, there is feeling that Venizelos eventually would support a British mandatory.

The suggestion of a international commission for Constantinople and the Dardanelles, if all other proposals fail, comes from Leon Maccas, an influential Greek who is working for better relations between Greece and France. He would have a Swiss statesman for president, if no American would accept the post.

STILL CHANCE TO JOIN PUBLIC FRENCH CLASS

James A. Moyer, director of the Division of University Extension, announces that the division, in response to many requests, has decided to allow late enrollments for its new course in conversational French to be made at the first meeting of the class Wednesday evening in the assembly hall of the Boston Public Library.

The course will consist of twenty lessons and is open to residents of the metropolitan district.

CONGRESS FACES FULL CALENDAR OF BUSINESS

Reconvenes After Recess, With Settlement of Treaty Question Promised

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Congress reconvened today after a holiday recess, to take up a full calendar of domestic legislation and with the settlement of the treaty question promised by the Senate leaders in the "near future."

The business before the Senate was the water-power bill which was made unfinished business before the recess adjournment two weeks ago. When this is passed, the Sterling sedition bill will be taken up.

Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, plans to oppose the Sterling bill provisions creating a virtual peace time censorship of publications. The bill gives the postmaster-general power to bar from the mails all writings advocating the overthrow of government by force.

Following the disposition of the Sterling bill, the Kenyon Americanization bill will be taken up. This bill would compel the education of illiterate aliens.

Senator Jones, of Washington, will take up his plan for the creation of a United States merchant marine immediately.

The finance committee will complete legislation for the protection of industries started during the war.

Hearings on the investigation of the settlement of the recent coal strike, in so far as a possible increase of coal prices to the consumer is concerned, will be continued by Senator Frelinghuysen, chairman of the committee.

Investigation of the activities of L. C. A. K. Martens, representing the Russian Soviet government in the United States, will be started when Senator Moses returns to Washington next week. The Watson special committee investigation of alleged Bolshevist influence in the Federal Trade Commission will be started shortly, according to Mr. Watson.

Victor L. Berger and the Irish question were pushed to the front in the House. Plans were in the framing by House leaders to make short work of the Berger contest for a seat in the House. Representative Dallinger of Massachusetts expected to present immediately a resolution declaring Berger ineligible to a seat and ask the House to adopt it without delay.

Steel Mills Sold Up

It is reported from Pittsburgh that practically all steel mills are sold up fully for the first quarter of this year and that orders received by some of the larger will tax their productive capacity for six months. Production is about 80 per cent. of capacity on the average. There is a labor shortage and all producers have sought to restrict sales.

The Miracle of Love

By COSMO HAMILTON

"AS time goes on everything that isn't entailed must be sold, piece by piece, to enable us to live and pay wages. We can never recover from the disloyal self-indulgence of your grandfather. We can merely stand by with folded hands in impotent despair, unless you say to yourself, 'Which thing am I gfioin to do? Drift and steal happiness in secret, or stand by the family of which I am the head and sacrifice self?'"

Yet once again, as he looked into the face of this good woman and saw it touched with something of the nobility that comes forth from the soul of every human being who has discovered that life is, and must be, a trust, a short span to be worked out to the best of all possible effort, for those who are to follow, Clive asked himself why it was that every time he made up his mind to break the rules, the great umpire seemed to guess his intention and turn upon him a face filled with surprise and disappointment.

He Has to Decide

One thing was obvious. He must do what was expected of him without loss of time. His aunt had sold jewels. It was an act that flicked him forward like a whip. Even if that had not happened, her plain statement of facts would have been sufficient to send him back to London strung up to the realization of his duty. He would go to London. He would, as soon as it was decent—sooner, because he was in no position to be squeamish—offer marriage to the Kirbys' daughter, and if they accepted him—and there was no certainty about that, as Dukes were going cheap—he would be honest and faithful to her. But—and this rang out in his brain—first he would go to Helena. Providence asked much of him, the family asked everything of him; but neither had the right to ask him to lay the one great love of his life on the altar of responsibility.

"You shall not have to stand by with folded hands," he said to the little gray woman. "I am as much a Hurbert as you are."

They took each other's hands in silence.

The week-end was not wasted. Essendine was taken into the family council. Clive and Lady Emily had long talks with him, sitting under the shadow of the old house which seemed to be straining its ears to listen, as it had the right to do. It was discovered, by ringing up the Coburg Hotel, that the Kirbys were staying over Sunday on the borders of the next county at a house rented by Mrs. Alvin Morten of New York.

All his matchmaking instincts fired. Essendine suggested hiring the best car the town could produce and driving over to bring the Kirbys and their hostess back to lunch. Let them see the place and its beauty, he said, and go away with the wonder of its history upon them. So Clive sent a telegram on Saturday making the invitation, which, in due course, they accepted with extreme pleasure.

The park was at its best and freshest when the Kirby party was driven through it. In his airiest manner, Essendine placed a metaphorical megaphone to his mouth, as he had seen the man do on the rubber-neck tourist cars in America, and dropped interesting little bits of history into eager ears.

Things Go Well

Kirby's grandfather was a Yorkshireman and a farmer and what English blood there was in his veins tingled at the sight of this peculiarly English place, whose dignity was so simple and unaffected. Mrs. Kirby, who had never left her native land before or been in the habit of meeting anyone with a higher title than "Judge" and "Colonel," sat very quiet and watchful, made perhaps a little less ure of herself from the fact that Mrs. Alvin Morten considered herself to be quite English and talked incessantly with an accent that was almost comic in its imitation.' Cornelia thought everything "perfectly fine" with contagious enthusiasm and delight.

The house, with its old masters and beautiful collection of armor, silver, china and tapestries, its age and its story, left them all without words. But they found the Dowager Duchess and Lady Emily so like any other affectionate little family, so quietly cordial and so—to them, with their stage and novel notions of English aristocracy—simple and unsidey, that even Mrs. Kirby was very soon discussing servant troubles with the little mother and telling the story of her early struggles to Lady Emily, when she cooked Madison's meals herself and washed his underclothes.

With an uncharacteristic lack of that quaint vanity which causes most successful Americans to tell the amazing history of their rise to riches, having begun, as they mostly have, by selling papers in the streets—as many millionaires so'd papers in the streets as there were passengers on the Mayflower—Kirby talked golf and shooting.

His long training in diplomacy made it clear to Essendine that the thin edge of the wedge could be inserted in no better way than by making Mrs. Alvin Morten understand by a few almost distrait remarks that Clive was on the lookout for a wife. He had no doubt but that she, an obvious tuft hunter and under a complete obsession as to titles, would talk Clive and Sumptermead to Cornelia's parents for the rest of their star with her.

It was easy to see that Madison Kirby had taken to Clive. He was equally caught by the beauty and the history of the house. The two struck up a friendship. Both men were clean and fit and honest, and each recognized these things in the other. Cornelia, too, made a hit—as she afterward said with laughing mouth—with the two elderly ladies and the result of this brief visit was an invitation to stay for a week at Sumptermead, which was accepted with delight.

That night Clive was very quiet. He had driven the car back to Mrs. Morten's hired house with Cornelia by his side. He thought her a charming, frank, straightforward girl, and knew, without vanity or egotism that she liked him, and was as crazy about him as she had expressed herself as being about the house and the park and his mother, Lady Emily and the dogs. He had already been enlightened by Essendine as to the significance of that American word, and so knew its value. But he also knew that he had only to exert himself while this high enthusiasm and glamour were upon her, only to pay her compliments and feed her frankly-confessed vanity, and be as agreeable as he well knew how, to bring to a rapid end the money difficulties with which he and the family were surrounded.

Playing the Game

He was a damned duke and nothing, certainly no vain regrets or recriminations or whinings, could alter the fact. As such, he must play the duke game. Very well. There were always two ways of playing it, according to the rules and like a blackleg. He would stick to the rules, and if this little American girl thought it worth her while to become his wife, and in return for his title and a seat at his table rehabilitate his finances, he would be faithful. He would follow as well as he was able in George's footsteps. In the meantime——

And here he went to his room and wrote a little burning letter to Helena, confirming his acceptance of Lady Luxminster's invitation to stay in Curzon street for a fortnight. His whole personal life was, then, to be concentrated into two short weeks. During these few brief days he was to be Clive Hubert, the lover, the man who brought to a consummation the great passion of his life.

The same day found Helena alone in Curzon street. The Luxminsters had gone off to Henley for a day on the river with cousins of Arthur's. For several reasons Minnie set herself to persuade Helena to go with them.

Helena had never craved to be alone so much. Tomorrow Clive would be under the same roof. From tomorrow for two weeks he and she were going to give up trying to be good—Lady Luxminster called it "imitating the angels and putting themselves, for no reason at all, among inhuman people." From tomorrow they were going to accept the beliefs of the super-individualist, to whom nothing is wrong that is desired, even if it has always been and still is to others illegal or immoral.

Police Department Secrecy a Mistaken Policy

It appears that the police department is now for the first time unwilling to let the public know the facts concerning lawlessness in this community.

Hitherto, the number of outbreaks and other instances of the violation of the law have been accessible to the newspapers and to anybody who was interested in them. Just why there has been a change of policy in this respect since the strike the American may guess, but is not sure. In any event it is a mistaken policy. Nothing is gained by secrecy in a community like ours. The American people are an intelligent people, and the people of the Metropolitan district are especially intelligent and they ought not to be treated like children who are incapable of knowing the truth, whatever it is, concerning any important institution of the government.

When an institution is functioning at its best under the circumstances, the people of this community are capable of making allowances for shortcomings. But when secrecy is invoked, when things are kept in the dark, there is a natural tendency to resolve doubts against those who hide behind secrecy, and, worse still, to exaggerate the suspicion.

15,000 in New York Schools Have Heart Disease

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

An analysis of the causes of death in this country develops a fact which will be surprising. More people die from heart disease than from tuberculosis.

And the majority of cardiac or heart troubles have their beginning in childhood.

There are not less than fifteen thousand children in the public schools of New York suffering from diseases of the heart.

Many of these children are required to walk considerable distances to school and to climb stairs to reach their classrooms, arriving gasping for breath and with heart action greatly exceeding the normal and proper beat.

Not much special attention has been given to these afflicted children, activities in their behalf having been confined very largely to two classes conducted in the Educational Alliance in co-operation with the social service bureau of Beth Israel Hospital and to classes in one Brooklyn school and in three other Manhattan schools.

Heart trouble in children is usually the result either of bad teeth, adenoids, diseased tonsils, improper food or mental overactivity.

The heart is one portion of the body that never gets a chance to rest and recuperate. It has to keep up its work or we die.

To burden it, especially in childhood, with the task of doing its work under diseased conditions, reduces almost to a certainty the prospect that the child will develop into an invalid, a continued care to its parents and frequently an expense to the public.

The work already accomplished by the pioneers in attacking this threat against child health has proved that the providing of proper conditions and continued treatment has increased the efficiency of the children as pupils and in very many cases restored them completely.

Those who have undertaken, in a necessarily limited way, the care of these afflicted little ones are urging that special classrooms and expert attention be provided and that after school care be directed by the proper authorities.

The results which they have accomplished show that the work should be broadened until every child with an unsound heart is given a chance to recover normal conditions and avoid a future of pain and dependence.

The Yellow Peril Looms More Clearly and Ominously

At its highest point British navalism never cost more than one-quarter of Britain's revenues. The new naval program of Japan calls for more than 30 per cent. of Japan's imperial income—200 warships to be built in seven years.

What motive impels this relatively poor nation to spend so lavishly on naval armament? Its alliance with England, which has a year and a half to run, gives to Japan the protection, against wanton attack, of the world's most powerful navy. There is no visible reason for assuming that England will be unwilling to renew it.

It, therefore, cannot be fear of wanton attack which impels Japan to strain for greater sea power. No nation in the Orient is capable of challenging Japan's present strength on sea or land. With Britain at her back, no white nation would be eager for a combat.

There remains the possibility that Japan desires increased strength for offensive purposes. This is confirmed by an utterance of a Japanese newspaper, the Niroku. It frankly declares that the Anglo-Japanese alliance is unnatural and that Japan should go to China to form a combination of the yellow peoples against the whites. "The world of yellow men," it says, "should rest on their own shoulders. No white man should be allowed to interfere."

If this were meant in a defensive sense only it would merit some respect. The white peoples have not always treated the yellow peoples fairly. The British in India, all the imperialistic European powers in their dealings with China, have shown selfishness, greed and cruelty. The United States alone has been fair, even generous, when not indifferent.

But Japan's record in Formosa, Korea, Manchuria and China proper has been equally unfair and more cruel and grasping. A yellow race combination with Japan in the lead would mean Japan dominant, covetous, insolent, aggressive. It would menace white civilization.

The United States, with natural rights in the Pacific, can ill afford to let these be endangered. It must have a navy adequate for complete protection in every sea.

Stop Him!

More Truth Than Poetry

Still There's Joy in the World

By S. E. KISER

FAREWELL to the wine, but the women and song
Remain to enchant, and there's cheer in a smile;
The wicked may thrive and the righteous go wrong,
But honor and courage are not out of style.
The birds will be nesting when April is past,
New blossoms will brighten the woodlands in May,
And even where Winter's gray shadows are cast
There are children at play.

THE outcries are loud, there are bitter complaints,
But in spite of the greed that is making men wild,
And in spite of the fools who pretend to be saints,
There are fountains of joy that have not been defiled;
There still is good luck in the faith of a friend,
And beauty continues sometimes to be pure;
Some day we shall coax the oppressors to end
The abuse we endure.

IN spite of the efforts that hypocrites make
To teach us to yield to Rapacity's will,
There are reasons for keeping ambition awake,
And Virtue has charms that are genuine still;
Our burdens are heavy, the thrush and the lark
Have ceased for a season to make us forget,
But when Mary and John sit alone in the dark
There is happiness yet.

INTOLERANCE chortles, still on the old job,
There are shouts of defiance and cries of dismay;
The reckless attempt to embitter the mob,
We are told that the devil is having his day;
But there's hope for the brave and there's work for the strong,
And there's gladness in spite of the bruises and bumps,
For the pitiless greedy whose reaches are long
Sometimes have the mumps.

THERE'S ONLY ONE WICK IN A CANDLE

Some people waste their lives as if they were going to have plenty of others to utilize.

HERE'S THE MAN FOR THEM

Erzberger says Germany will pay. He will see to it that she does. If the sugar men have any difficulty in collecting, let them send for Erzberger.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

By K. C. B.

ON NEW Year's.
I WENT to the country
TO A small town.
WHERE THERE'S lots of snow.
AND I saw the residents.
RIDE IN cutters.
AND HEARD sleigh bells.
GO MERRILY by.
FROM THEIR hanging places.
ON HORSES' necks.
OR WHEREVER they hang.
AND I was glad.
FOR THEY brought to me.
FOND MEMORIES.
OF BOYHOOD days.
AND COURTING days.
IN THE long ago.
WHEN LONG box sleds.
WERE FILLED with straw.
AND ROBES were brought.
AND WE took our girls.
AND SNUGGLED up.
WHILE AWAY up front.
A POOR lone man.
HELD TO the reins.
AND DROVE the team.
AND SLAPPED his hands.
TO KEEP them warm.
WHILE WE lay snug.
AND I talked of this.
WHILE WE sat and ate.
AND TALKED of it.
WHILE WE sat and smoked.
AND TALKED so much.
THAT OUR host went away.
AND CAME back again.
AND PROUDLY told.
THAT HE'D hired a team.
AND A big bob sled.
ALL FILLED with hay.
AND AT 6 o'clock.
IT WOULD arrive.
AND WE'D all pile in.
THE TEN of us.
AND GO back again.
TO THE good old days.
I'D BEEN talking about.
AND THE sleigh arrived.
AND WE got our coats.
AND GOT our wives.
AND TALKED and laughed.
AND JABBERED around.
IN THE same old way.
THAT WE used to do.
AND WE all piled in.
AND COVERED up.
AND THE man up front.
GAVE HIS whip a crack.
AND WE started off.
AND YELLED a while.
AND THEN started to sing.
AND THAT petered out.
AND WE just lay there.
AND IN thirty minutes.
I WAS so darned cold.
I WAS getting numb.
AND THE blanket I had.
CAME OFF a horse.
AND MY wife was cold.
AND SORE at me.
BECAUSE I'D talked so much.
ABOUT THE good old days.
AND WHEN we got back.
WE'D BEEN gone three hours.
AND I'M not warm yet.
AND I must have been crazy.
IN MY younger days.
AND, ANYWAY.
I TALK too much.

I THANK you.

HOW BOSTON CARES FOR THOSE IN NEED

By Randolph Wellford Smith

THE aftermath of the armistice, in many parts of the world begot a condition of human pain and suffering second only to the carnage of the Great War itself, and into the vortex of financial stress and deflected usefulness were drawn many eleemosynary and philanthropic works and institutions. The war rather added to the import and financial strength of the great societies and associations of the character of the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. and the Rockefeller and Carnegie foundations, but the smaller works and charities of the individualistic class were sorely handicapped and some of them are now put to it to continue their worthy endeavors.

Boston did not escape the general chaos. There are few cities in this or any country, with the exception of New York, which is by long odds the most charitable city in the world, where there are more institutional philanthropies of a type at once useful and promising than here in the Hub. For years the major number of them have been supported liberally and effectively. One does not have to put his ear to the ground now, however, to learn of at least a dozen or more that are in need of funds and others that could be greatly enhanced in usefulness if it were possible to secure more abundant support.

Some Are Unique

Some of these charities are unique and beautiful. There is an institution here—more of it anon—where every little bit of cloth and seemingly useless thing that you and all the rest of us would throw in the waste receptacle, is utilized. There are orders and associations to care for every known human ailment and there are hospitals, both public and private, of exceptional efficiency and merit.

There is logical and perhaps pardonable reason for the low ebb of finances in many of the charity treasuries. All over the world there has been an epidemic of "drives" of every description.

A woman told me in New York the other day—one of those strange angels that the Father drops down on this troubled sphere once in a while, just to illustrate the power of a full womanhood who spends about one hour a day on herself and the rest of the light and most of the darkness on other people—that she had kept track of 167 "necessary" war charities.

When I asked what she meant by "necessary" charities she replied "Charities that are humanitarian in the simplest sense and that should by all means be supported."

Inclined to Relapse

Naturally, after the strain of the war work, one has felt inclined to relapse. Especially is this true of the active war workers who were on the other side and who have about run the gamut of human suffering. But many of these are beginning to get their second breath and as soon as they renew their efforts the effect on suffering humanity is sure to be conspicuously noticeable.

Boston has had its full share of "drives" and appeals of every description. In many instances, with the noteworthy exception of the recent sale of Red Cross seals, their appeals have been liberally met. The very cosmopolitan character of the city's population lent to its market value as a medium for raising funds for every known—and unfortunately enough for some unknown—War charities.

I was chatting with a globe-trotter the other evening while the little army of very pretty Armenian girls raided the foyer and drawing-rooms of the Copley-Plaza for their fellow countrymen, when he turned to me suddenly and remarked:

"I am deuced if I don't believe there are as many Armenians in Boston as there are in Armenia."

It isn't quite so bad as that, but there are many thousands of them in the Hub and its immediate vicinity. It is not possible to walk half a dozen blocks on any of the streets or avenues without running into them, the golden tan of their swarthy countenances being unmistakable in any metropolitan throng. And there will be much suffering among them during the approaching Winter.

To Be Continued Tomorrow

THE ZEST OF STRIVING FOR BIG PRIZES

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

IT was a young soldier speaking, who had recently returned home.

"I wouldn't say that to most people," he continued, flatteringly. "I'd be well laughed at if I did. But I mean it, just the same."

It was a big order he was giving to the high gods. Fame, love and fortune! The summit of life's ambitions seen through the perspective of youth's dreams. Yet why shouldn't he realize that dream, or any other?

As he spoke, I recalled something I had read of another soldier dead in France, above whose bed were found three little verses called "The Wage."

They tell the story of a man "who bargained with Life for a penny, and Life would give no more." But at the end of a day he found:

"I worked for a menial's hire,
Only to learn dismayed,
That any wage I had asked of life,
Life would have paid."

Crop of Unbelievers

There is always a fair crop of unbelievers—those who never accomplish anything themselves, and are never willing to believe that others can. And as soon as the impossible is proved to be the possible in that instance, another crop of unbelievers is at hand. Doubting Thomas is a fixed institution.

Still it is comforting to remember that in every community there is his opposite — the man "who started to sing as he tackled the thing that couldn't be done—and he did it."

Only the other day we had an illustration of this. Weagant, during the war, announced that he had eliminated static interference in wireless telegraphy. The experts insisted that it couldn't be done. Then Weagant demonstrated his theory to a convention of experts, and they all said: "Why, of course!"

The list of important things that "couldn't be done" and have been done is practically endless. American history began with Columbus, who had the courage to act on his much derided conviction that he must sail West to find the East, and America has produced man after man who has dared the unknown and proved the unreliability of any such final word as impossible, among them Edison and the Wright brothers.

There is a story told of Lord Rosebery, that when he was twenty-one years old he said he meant to accomplish three things before he was fifty—marry an heiress, win the Derby with one of his horses and become Prime Minister of England.

Those who heard him smiled wisely. They regarded it as the boast of a bumptious young man.

There was not the slightest chance of his wishes being gratified. The conditions of his life at the time did not point to the realization of such soaring dreams.

But Rosebery made good his boast. He married a daughter of the Rothschilds, his horse won the Derby and he became one of the youngest Prime Ministers that England ever had.

Rule of Three

Why is it, by the way, that we count all our wishes and find most of our happiness in life by the rule of three? In the old fairy tales the prince or princess was only allowed three wishes. We come into the world as the third quantity in the trinity of the family—father, mother and child—and then keep on triangling our way through life. The necessities of existence are three—food, shelter and clothing. The fundamentals of education are three—readin', writin', and 'rithmetic.

And the soldier boy with whom I talked was demanding of Destiny—fame, love and fortune.

Perhaps the reason he put in such a big order is that in his experience as a soldier he had seen big things done, had taken part in accomplishment on a grand scale and had learned to discount failure and disappointments.

But even if he should not win his three wishes, he will still have chosen the better part, and he'll have a beautiful run for his money. The mere pursuit will mean adventure, something of romance, a lot of life and a combat with himself.

One who aims for the big prize may not realize all of his ambitions, but he does not sit in the cellar and eat cold potatoes.
